Jap Collapse as Major Air Power Indicated

BATTLE REPORTS SHOW U. S. IN CONTROL OF SKY

American Pilots Encounter
Little Opposition In Pacific Theatre

NAVY MEN OPTIMISTIC

Cream Of Tokyo's Pilot
Personnel Lost In Coral
Sea, Midway Fights

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Virtual collapse of Japan as a major air power is reflected today in battle reports which show that American army, navy and marine corps airmen control the skies in every active Pacific war theater.

In the Aleutians, the Solomons and New Guinea U. S. combat pilots have encountered little or no aerial opposition for weeks. This fact alone foreshadows an early aerial offensive against Japan based on New Britain and the Northern Solomons.

Navy men believe that even Truk, Nippon's greatest and most powerful Pacific base, may become a target for aerial attack when American and United Nations forces are able to expand their present airfield facilities.

According to these sources, Japan lost the cream of its pilot personnel in the long string of defeats in the Coral Sea, Midway and in the Solomons campaign. With the destruction of the major portion of Japan's carrier fleet in those battles, naval sources believe firmly that the Japs lost their "first team," and that the enemy will be unable to catch up with America's plane construction and pilot training programs.

ONE LOAD OF MUNITIONS ROMMEL FAILED TO GET

Allied bombers saw to it that this train loaded with munitions for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's North African army never reached its destination. Twisted track, parts of railroad cars and unexploded projectiles were found scattered across the desert after British forces reached the spot, near Mersa Matruh.

SENATORS OKEH GAS RATIONING

Simplification Of System,
However, Recommended
By Investigators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The Senate War Investigating committee today called for simplification of gasoline and fuel oil rationing while at the same time declaring that rationing is necessary and warning of an increasing shortage of fuel oil in the future.

The committee's report, which was submitted to the senate by Chairman Harry S. Truman (D) Mo., after an exhaustive inquiry, assailed government bureaus and complicating the problem by lack of prompt action to provide pipeline and barge transportation.

PUT ON YOUR RED FLANNELS, DOCTOR ADVISES

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 — To those who find the 65 degree room temperature, which fuel oil rationing may impose, a bit on the chilly side Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, had this recommendation today.

"Put on your old red flannels and put a pan of water on the radiator."

BEEES GET ADDITIONAL ALLOTMENT OF SUGAR

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 11—Certain New Jersey farmers today were allowed to make greatly increased purchases of sugar to keep the bees alive.

LUDLOW SPIKES AXIS INSPIRED RUMOR ON BONDS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11—Benjamin Ludlow, Pennsylvania administrator of war savings, today spiked the axis-inspired rumor that was believed responsible for an unusually large number of redemptions of War Savings Bonds in the last few days.

Many members of industrial payroll savings groups, when questioned, said they were told the government was going to freeze money for the redemption of bonds on January 1.

BREAK SEEN IN HUN LEADERSHIP

LONDON, Dec. 11—Increasing evidence that Adolf Hitler has broken not only with old-line Prussian military leadership, but with many of the militarists he himself raised from obscurity was seen today in appointment of Col. Gen. Kurt Zeitzler, one of Heinrich Himmler's "gangsters" as new chief of the German general staff.

Most of Hitler's recent military appointments have seen representatives of the Prussian "old guard" such as Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch, replaced by out-and-out loyal Nazis.

3,000 AIRPLANES AND 4000 TANKS SENT TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The extent of American and British war aid to Russia was indicated today in a statement by RAF Vice-Marshal F. MacNeece Foster that the Soviets have been sent 3,000 planes and 4,000 tanks in the last year.

Ag Department Boosts Rationing of Meat as Solution to Shortage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Agriculture department officials today stated that meat rationing is the only full solution to critical meat shortages in such defense centers as Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

WAR OBJECTOR GETS FIVE YEAR JAIL SENTENCE

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 11—Declaring that if everyone said he was opposed to war we would have the Nazis and Japs right on our backs, Judge John H. Druffel, of the southern district U. S. court, today threw the book at Forrest Ruth, 33, of Wheelersburg, O., who professes to be a Jehovah's Witness preacher.

SPARE ROME, IS POPE'S PLEA TO UNITED NATIONS

Italian Capital May Escape Bombs Despite Importance As Military Objective

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 — Authoritative sources in Washington today disclosed that the Vatican has made strong appeals to the United States and Great Britain to spare Rome from aerial bombardment.

As a result of the Vatican appeals, the view prevails in informed quarters that Rome may be spared from the devastating aerial attacks which are now being carried out against other Italian cities.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

DOOMED JAPANESE FIGHT AND DIE LIKE CORNERED RATS IN NEW GUINEA

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 11 — The remnants of the Japanese garrisons on the southeast New Guinea coast are doomed and they know it. They are fighting like cornered rats and must be killed one by one.

And that is exactly what the American and Australian jungle fighters are doing.

The Japanese have been forced back on a thin fringe of beach and coastal jungle around Buna, but they are strongly entrenched. Encircling the village stronghold is an almost solid line of machine gun and mortar positions, which have to be cleared out one at a time.

The enemy has been too hard pressed to bury its dead, and the stench of the decomposing bodies is almost unbearable. The ruthless, hard-boiled Japanese have donned gas masks and obviously are determined to fight to the last man.

But the Yanks and Aussies are tough, too. And they are convinced that they are the masters of the vaunted Nipponese who made a reputation as invincibles in their rapid drive through the Malayan jungles to Singapore.

MAIN RAILWAY JUNCTION Air Attack Impossible Without Endangering Church Center

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 — Authoritative sources in Washington today disclosed that the Vatican has made strong appeals to the United States and Great Britain to spare Rome from aerial bombardment.

As a result of the Vatican appeals, the view prevails in informed quarters that Rome may be spared from the devastating aerial attacks which are now being carried out against other Italian cities.

The Vatican, it was learned authoritatively, takes the position that Rome is a holy city and that, in view of the sacred place it holds in Christianity, it should be spared from destruction.

Consideration for the Vatican's attitude, and especially reluctance to endanger the Vatican city itself, is understood to be largely, if not entirely, responsible for the fact that Rome has not been bombed.

The Italian capital is regarded as a vitally important military objective. It serves as a main junction for railway communication with southern Italy and the supply route to North Africa via Sicily.

Destruction of its railway bottleneck would, informed sources believe, seriously affect the shipment of troops and war supplies from Germany to the axis forces in Tunisia and Libya.

3,000 AIRPLANES AND 4000 TANKS SENT TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The extent of American and British war aid to Russia was indicated today in a statement by RAF Vice-Marshal F. MacNeece Foster that the Soviets have been sent 3,000 planes and 4,000 tanks in the last year.

Speaking at a Russian war relief dinner, Foster also disclosed that more than 30,000 vehicles and 800,000 tons of miscellaneous cargo also was shipped.

"Without the great flow of munitions of war from the United States and from England," he said, "even the most fervent admirer of the great effort which we now record may well believe that the defenders of Stalingrad and the reserves accumulated for the subsequent attacks would have been well-nigh impossible."

"Such a statement is not for one moment to disparage in the slightest degree the splendid contribution of the Russian people; any people less brave and resolute would have been defeated long before now, even if they had received reinforcements ten times as great as those which have been sent."

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The War Department announced to- day that powerful artillery bat- teries of the allied forces has forced the retreat of half of a two-pronged heavy axis attack southwest of Tebourba.

A communique said that two enemy tank columns, supported by infantry had launched a double attack on allied positions near Merjez El Bab, 18 miles southwest of Tebourba.

BULLETIN Fearful Of Italy

London, Dec. 11—A Reuter dispatch from Moscow reported today that Adolf Hitler is sounding out Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania regarding their attitude in event of Italy's withdrawal from the war.

The dispatch gave no details beyond saying that Hitler had instructed his envoys in Budapest, Sofia and Bucharest to make appropriate inquiries.

While lacking any official confirmation whatever, the report naturally revived speculation about the possibility of an early internal collapse in Italy.

By International News Service
Axis tank forces in Tunisia launched a desperate attack on allied lines today as deserters reported that the enemy was running short of food, dispatches from the North African front reported today.

Details of the fighting were meager, but it was believed that the British first army, aided by American mechanized forces, was standing up to the enemy assaults.

Reinforcements were reported to be flowing into the axis lines as additional allied troops and equipment moved up to the battlefield. The enemy made numerous bold thrusts into the allied lines and hammered the exposed flanks of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's forces as both sides appeared to be waging a waiting battle until additional strength can be accumulated.

On the southern arm of the allied pincers drive in Africa, the British eighth army in Libya harassed the enemy line in the El Agheila area, and reports from the middle east command headquarters said the enemy was showing signs of nervousness.

WAR OBJECTOR GETS FIVE YEAR JAIL SENTENCE

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 11—Declaring that if everyone said he was opposed to war we would have the Nazis and Japs right on our backs, Judge John H. Druffel, of the southern district U. S. court, today threw the book at Forrest Ruth, 33, of Wheelersburg, O., who professes to be a Jehovah's Witness preacher.

Ruth, who pleaded objection to war because of his religious beliefs, was sentenced to five years in a federal prison. He was specifically charged with violation of the Selective Service act.

The Wheelersburg man claimed nine-year affiliation with the Witness sect.

Weeks in Desert

When he was forced down in his Wellington bomber behind the German lines in North Africa, Sgt. J. K. Wood, above, of the Royal Australian Air Force, set out with a companion to reach his base. They walked for weeks across the desert to avoid the Axis lines. Sergeant Wood is pictured after his return.

NELSON DUNLAP, SON OF RENICK DUNLAP, DIES

Nelson Dunlap, 41, of Mobile, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. Renick W. Dunlap of Pickaway township, died at 9 a. m. Friday in Mount Carmel hospital, Columbus. Mr. Dunlap, whose grandfather, Nelson J. Dunlap, 99, of Kingston, died Wednesday, submitted to an abdominal operation December 1 in the Columbus hospital. Several blood transfusions were given him earlier in the week.

Funeral services for Mr. Dunlap's grandfather were conducted Friday afternoon at his home in Kingston, the venerable retired farmer having been one of the best known men in south central Ohio.

The younger Mr. Dunlap had been living in Mobile while employed in the nursery division of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Mr. Dunlap was a member of the Ohio State university football team in 1921-22-23, and was the first son of a Varsity "O" winner to earn his letter. His father was captain of the Ohio State team in 1895.

Born in Circleville, February 16, 1902, he was graduated from Ohio State in 1924. He attended Culver Military academy before entering Ohio State.

His survivors include his parents, his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Dunlap, a native of Chicago, and a sister, Mary, wife of Carl Smith of Rochester, N. Y.

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at the Renick Dunlap residence, east of Kingston.

RELIEF SOUGHT IN SHORTAGE OF OHIO TEACHERS

McDowell Issues Orders For Registration Of All Candidates

STATE-WIDE CAMPAIGN

Persons Who Can Qualify By Next September Are Eligible

Information concerning registration of all former teachers and of persons who could qualify for teaching jobs in Ohio's schools was issued Friday by George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, on instructions from the state department of education. Harold J. Bowers of Ashville, supervisor of teacher certification in the state department, is conducting the state-wide registration through which, it is hoped, a grave teacher shortage may be alleviated.

Local Registration

Blanks are available in Mr. McDowell's office for registration during the week of December 14 of all unemployed teachers who might be interested in returning to the classroom. Some teaching positions are already vacant and others are anticipated during the remainder of the school year.

The plan also provides for registration of interested persons who are not qualified to teach, but who could qualify by September, 1943, by taking short courses during the year or during the Summer session. It is hoped by educators that a large number of persons may be persuaded to take additional courses in order to prepare themselves for teaching.

Mr. McDowell has copies of certification regulations from which information may be obtained as to current requirements in the various teaching fields, as well as the names of Ohio colleges approved for teaching training in each field.

300 Vacancies

At present there are approximately 300 vacancies in schools of Ohio, and new vacancies are occurring daily with Selective Service and the lure of higher paying jobs in defense industry taking many instructors.

"Unless a large number of additional teachers is provided for the schools from the ranks of former teachers or from those who had not planned to teach," Mr. Bowers said, "the schools of Ohio will suffer seriously during the next year."

Mr. Bowers received much praise for the work he did prior to the start of the present school year when he, with assistance of county superintendents and other educators, was able to fill several hundred vacancies throughout the state.

ATLANTA

Story of Joe Stalin's Criticism is Outlined

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Here is the inside story of what happened at the famous banquet tendered Wendell Willkie in Moscow, at which Stalin criticized the British in the presence of the British Ambassador.

Like most Moscow banquets for foreign dignitaries, the dinner was followed by a long series of toasts. The speakers were introduced by Foreign Minister Molotov, four interpreters scribbled in notebooks, later translated into Russian or English.

The thirtieth toast that evening fell to Joe Barnes, former newspaper correspondent in Russia, now with the Office of War Information, and one of Willkie's advisers on the trip. The toasts had been long and were dragging. Barnes decided it was time to wake people up.

So he spoke in Russian. It was the first time in the history of these formal banquets that a visiting American or Englishman had replied in Russian and it brought down the house. Stalin himself led the applause.

Then Barnes turned to the interpreters and signaled for them to interpret in English. They were confused. So Stalin suggested that Barnes translate his own speech into his native tongue, which was naturally easy for him, and he did.

GREATEST MAN IN WORLD

Next speaker introduced by Foreign Minister Molotov was Gardner "Mike" Cowles, associate publisher of the Des Moines Register-Tribune and Look Magazine. Barnes had set the pace and Cowles faced the problem of outdoing him. He began nobly.

"I propose a toast," he said, "to the greatest man living in the world today."

The interpreters translated into Russian. The whole table held its breath. Was Cowles going to toast Stalin as the greatest man in the world? The Russians looked pleased. Others looked at the British Ambassador. Would he accept Stalin as greater than Churchill? Or would Cowles toast Roosevelt? Or was it Willkie?

Cowles enjoyed the suspense for a moment, then continued: "I toast the unknown Russian soldier who is winning this war!"

The entire gathering was on its feet. Cowles had outdone Barnes.

STALIN SPEAKS

Thirty-second and next toast of the evening was that of Major Grant Mason. Mason is a former director of Pan American Airways, former member of the Civil Aeronautics Board, and a crack flier. He does not, however, pretend to be a speaker, and little did he dream that his speech was to have the most startling reverberations of the evening. Mason's toast consisted of a straightforward tribute to Russian and allied pilots who "dare in the air which they share."

The interpreters complained that they couldn't translate this into Russian and make it rhyme. But it rhymed with Stalin.

For after the champagne glasses clicked in honor of Allied and Russian fliers and the company started to sit down, suddenly they discovered that they could not sit down. For Josef Stalin, head of all Russia, was speaking.

He agreed with the tribute to the fliers. But he went on to say that many Russian fliers were flying with cast-off equipment, with planes the Allies did not want. With the British Ambassador listening, Stalin bluntly told how, when the United States finally did send some of the latest airplane models, they had been taken off the ship in Scotland. Russia never got them.

Stalin finished. There was painful silence. Suddenly the deep voice of Wendell Willkie boomed forth in a soothing, diplomatic speech on the importance of being frank among ourselves. Good Allies must be frank, he said, but there was also the danger that differences might pull the Allies apart. This, he said, was what Hitler wanted most.

Later the British Ambassador made a brief speech in which he gave a complimentary appraisal of Stalin, his leadership and all of the things he had done for his country.

That ended probably the most historic Moscow dinner ever held in honor of a visiting dignitary.

Note: Stalin was quite correct that first class American planes were taken off a Russian-bound ship by the British. But he did not know that Gen. Eisenhower, preparing for an African front, and knowing that Alracobras were on the ships, went to Prime Minister Churchill personally and demanded the planes. Churchill finally gave them to him.

DEMOCRATIC REVOLT

Smouldering resentment inside the Democratic Party was flared out against its present leadership and has culminated in the call for a meeting of Midwest Democratic leaders at Omaha Saturday.

At the meeting will be the Democratic state chairmen or other leaders from Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, and Wyoming.

It will be a rump conference, held without official sanction of Washington, but nevertheless with the tacit approval of some bigwigs inside the Democratic National Committee.

Purpose of the Omaha meeting is to form a bloc or coalition to "salvage the remnants of the Democratic Party." This is strong language, in any party, especially when the head of the party sits in the White House. But there is growing dissatisfaction with the President himself in regard to party leadership, particularly the fact that he has given no cue for building up leadership for 1944.

Another resentment sure to flare up at the Omaha meeting is against the chief whipping boy of the Roosevelt administration, Leon Henderson.

Probable plan is to form a working agreement between Midwestern leaders and certain leaders inside Congress to take more and more play away from the President and put it back in the hands of the party.

A growing underground movement has also started to make sure that when the Democratic National Committee meets, the new chairman will be the choice of party leaders, not be handpicked by FDR personally.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

The U. S. Navy pays tribute to the expert gunnery of the French Navy, also their courage. When the French battleship Jean Bart opened fire at Casablanca, she was inside the harbor, but her first shot struck so close to a U. S. warship that it blew one U. S. landing boat out of the water. The landing boat had just been lowered. California gossips have been predicting that defeated Gov. Olson would retire in favor of Lieutenant Governor Patterson, then have Patterson appoint him to the California Supreme Court. This however, is doubtful because Olson doesn't trust Patterson any further than he can throw an elephant. How doubtful it is, was confirmed when Gov. Olson turned up in Washington the other day to persuade Roosevelt to appoint him to Justice Byrnes' vacancy on the U. S. Supreme Court.

KINGSTON

Mrs. Margaret Dalby a sister, and Miss Margaret Thomas were called to the bedside of Mrs. Jane Leist who is in a serious condition at the University hospital, in Columbus.

Nelson Dunlap, son of Mr. and Mrs. Renick Dunlap, is a surgical patient with a stomach ailment, at the Mt. Carmel hospital in Columbus.

Leslie Shepler is on the sick list at this writing.

The state of Minnesota contains more than 10,000 lakes.

TAX ON COAL

Circleville and Pickaway county coal dealers have been instructed by Office of Price administration to add four cents to the price of each ton of coal. The extra four cents is a federal transportation tax which became effective December 1. OPA has ruled that coal dealers may collect the tax from the consumer.

pressed back on a narrowing beachhead in the vicinity of Buna, 14 miles south of Gona.

The Japanese fought with the fury of cornered rats, and manned strong positions on the outskirts of Buna, but their fate appeared sealed. A series of frantic counter-attacks were smashed by American and Australian jungle fighters closing in on the remnants of the enemy invasion force which landed on the coast last July and subsequently drove to within 32 miles of the allied base at Port Moresby.

Italy Gets Respite

RAF bombers gave Italy a respite from the devastating campaign of systematic destruction promised by Winston Churchill, but Italian nervousness increased. Great fires were reported still raging in Turin, North Italian industrial center which was heavily bombed Wednesday and Thursday nights by formidable forces of RAF heavy bombers.

The great Russian offensives on the Stalingrad and Moscow fronts moved ahead at reduced pace after overcoming strenuous axis resistance. The German high command rushed airborne reinforcements to critical points on the 80-mile battle line, but failed to check the Soviet advance.

An additional 3,500 axis troops were reported killed in local engagements in which Soviet forces smashed into German positions.

NINE-FOLD HOIST IN PRODUCTION IS BUICK'S AIM

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—With several thousand Pratt and Whitney engines already turned out for American bombing planes, the Melrose park plant of the Buick division of General Motors was engaged in expansion operations today for a nine-fold increase in production on the basis of its original equipment.

The announcement of the expansion program and the completion of the first two contracts for bomber engines at the end of November was made by Harlow H. Curtice, G. M. vice president and general manager of Buick, during a visit in Chicago.

Several additions to the Buick plant already have been constructed, and another now is being built and is expected to be completed early next year, Curtice said. "The rapid increase in volume in the Buick plants during the last 10 months has made possible the completion of the first two contract requirements of several thousand engines by the end of November which, under the original plans, would have taken another year," Curtice said.

"In accomplishing this, plant and equipment have been expanded many times and additional facilities are being produced to meet an unprecedented mass production volume of aircraft engines."

Reports from the battlefronts tell of the high performances of the engines which are said to be running "cool," enabling them to reach high altitudes, Curtice said.

JAMES ROBINSON TO BE FREED FROM MANSFIELD

James Robinson, 20-year-old New Orleans Negro, will be released from the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield May 1 after serving two and one-half years of a one to 20 year term for burglary and larceny of the Gallaher drug store, West Main street.

Robinson was sent to the institution in November, 1940, after admitting breaking into the drug store with two other youths, one of whom is now at Boys' Industrial school near Lancaster and the other remaining in the reformatory.

The Louisiana youth was a fugitive from the Fleming, Ky., jail when he was caught here.

18 TIRE INSPECTORS DISCUSS REGULATIONS

Eighteen tire inspectors serving Cincinnati and Pickaway county motorists under OPA authority gathered in city hall rationing offices Thursday evening to discuss rules and regulations for inspection which is under way at the present time.

All automobile owners who received gasoline ration books must have their tires inspected before February 1, rationing officials urging that inspection be conducted as soon as possible to avoid the rush certain to come the last of January.

MOTHER QUITS BABY GIRL FOR FOURTH TIME

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—Two and one half year old Gene Forman is truly a "forgotten child." Today, for the fourth time in eight months, she was in a children's shelter as an abandoned wife.

Last April she was found in a playground; on November 22, in a hotel lobby, and just a few weeks ago in a rooming house. Yesterday, the proprietor of still another rooming house again brought her to police.

According to authorities, the child's mother, Mrs. Norah Forman, has been taken to a hospital for treatment of alcoholism. The baby's father is employed by a steamship line.

BREAK SEEN IN HUN LEADERSHIP

in positions of authority far above that of many old-line officers, holdovers from the imperial days and veterans of the staff college.

Privately, according to believable reports, Halder, Rommel and Jodl long have been the butt of ridicule on the part of the junkers. But Hitler trusted them implicitly.

Reports were current some weeks ago that Hitler had peremptorily dismissed Halder, accusing him of failing to keep up with his own ambitions in Russia. Hitler was reported to have summoned Halder to headquarters and after berating him for inefficiency and thanking him half-heartedly for what had been done, concluded with the words: "You may go."

Complete Surprise

Appointment of Zeitzler as his successor, however, came as a complete surprise. All that is known of this new general except for some fulsome words of praise over his physique and mentality broadcast by the German radio is that he is 44 and hitherto was attached to Hitler's headquarters as Himmler's personal representative.

The changeover, of course, allows for limitless speculation, in view of persistent rumors that the old-line generals were hankering for some sort of anti-Hitler "putsch" and a makeshift peace with the allies, plus reports that Himmler, through his gestapo, is gradually tunnelling his way into power over the German army and perhaps over Hitler himself.

JANE B. LEIST, KINGSTON STORE OPERATOR, DIES

Mrs. Jane B. Leist, 65, a resident of Kingston for 40 years, died Thursday in University hospital, Columbus. She was owner of a grocery store in Kingston.

Born December 8, 1874, in Washington C. H., she was a daughter of Robert and Asenath Blanchard. Her husband, Francis R. Leist, preceded her in death. Survivors include a son, James B. Leist of Dayton; two grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Dalbey, Kingston.

Funeral services will be Saturday at the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church, Kingston, the Rev. L. V. Baugness officiating with burial in the village cemetery by L. E. Hill.

WILLIAM HORN DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

William Horn, 82, a resident of Pickaway county for many years, died Thursday at 9:32 p. m. at his home, 432 East Union street, of organic heart disease after illness of two years. Mr. Horn was a native of Hocking county, born March 11, 1860.

Mr. Horn married Alma Lama in Tarlton in 1889, his widow surviving in addition to two children, Mrs. Eunice Brown and Boyd Horn of Circleville.

Funeral will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Albright chapel, the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home where friends may call Sunday evening.

BERT H. WARD, FORMER ASHVILLE RESIDENT, DIES

Bert H. Ward, 59, a former resident of Ashville, died Thursday at his home, 69½ Hossack street, Columbus. His wife, Susan Scarborough Ward, died several years ago.

Survivors include the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. W. C. Hoover, Clinton Ward, Mrs. Charles Baker of Ashville, Dill Ward of Williamsport and Fred of Walnut township.

Funeral will be Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hoover, Ashville, the Rev. O. W. Smith officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

SPARE ROME, IS POPE'S PLEA TO UNITED NATIONS

Vatican or the historic Catholic churches in the city proper.

The Vatican city is located across the Tiber somewhat apart from Rome proper. However, it is felt that it would be extremely difficult to carry out night bombing of Rome without straying bombs hitting the Vatican. Nor is it thought that military objectives, such as the railway lines, could be effectively bombed from the air, even in the daylight, without destroying some of the historic churches in the city proper.

In the early part of the war, the British threatened to bomb Rome if Athens or Cairo were bombed. Both the Greek and Egyptian capitals eventually were bombed, but the British refrained from carrying out the threatened retaliation against Rome.

Nevertheless, the Italian capital has had air raid scares. Shortly after Italy entered the war, French planes flew over Rome for four successive nights dropping propaganda leaflets. Each night found the populace flocking out of the city in near panic for fear bombs would follow the leaflets.

DUCE IGNORED IN AXIS EXCHANGE OF FELICITATIONS

TOKYO, Dec. 11—(By official Japanese radio)—Emperor Hirohito today exchanged telegrams of congratulation with Adolf Hitler and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy on the first anniversary of the Italo-German-Japanese military pact.

The Tokyo broadcast describing the exchange of telegrams was the first time since the war began that Premier Benito Mussolini has been ignored by his axis colleagues as head of the Italian state.

The Tripartite military agreement was signed not by King Victor Emmanuel, who is only a figurehead in the Italian state, but by Mussolini himself and his Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Emperor Hirohito may have sent his telegram to the king because royalty recognized royalty as head of a state. But this nevertheless is the first recorded instance in which Mussolini has been completely frozen out of an interchange of axis felicitations.

Ag Department Boosts Rationing of Meat as Solution to Shortage

distribution of the nation's beef products.

One big reason for meat shortages in cities like Detroit, Boston and Washington, it was said, was that local ceiling prices were low and that packers in the big supply points of Chicago and Kansas City thus had no inclination to ship beef to them.

Instead, large packers, who provide the greater portion of meats to cities, shipped their processed beef to towns offering the highest ceiling prices.

This was especially true, department officials reported, since packers could supply civilians only 70 percent of 1941 civilian meat consumption. With meat supplies off, packers sought to reach the best markets for what meat they could sell.

BLAIR RETURNS FROM SPECIAL STATE SCHOOL

F. K. Blair, Pickaway county farm agent, returned to his office Friday after going to school during the week at Ohio State university. He took a short course in animal husbandry and also received two days' training in income tax work. He and several other persons in the county were trained to aid in filling out tax papers. Also attending the income tax instruction school were E. C. Rector of Williamsport, A. Seymour Thomas of New Holland, Archie Peters of Madison township and Lewis Cook of Circleville.

RATION OFFICE NEARS END OF OIL RECORDING

Rationing office, aided by a battery of high school pupils and other volunteers, was completing its kerosene and fuel oil coupon book processing Friday with only about 500 books to be sent out to applicants.

The workers completed and mailed 768 books in Thursday's work.

About 5,000 kerosene and fuel oil books have been processed by the office since the work started.

MYSTERY PIG'S HOME BELIEVED TO BE IN CITY

The 50-pound pig which made an excursion into the Circleville business district Thursday noon and then took off for parts unknown is believed to be the property of Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler, Pearl Alley. The Fowlers lost a pig answering the description of the one seen in the street.

Police have received a report that the pig finally fled to one of the railroad tracks west of Circleville and that it was caught by a man who lives west of the city.

The new OPA order divides the nation into 10 areas with Kansas City as the basing point. The order, raising high grade beef prices at Kansas City from 19½ cents per pound, wholesale, to 21 cents per pound, takes transportation costs into account in setting up ceiling prices.

Therefore, east and west coast cities, far from the large stockyards, can compete for beef with mid-western cities.

At the same time, Secretary Wickard pledged that food will be distributed fairly to all civilians in all areas. This will be accomplished in part, he said, by rationing and allocation.

Officials of the New Food Distribution Administration, it was learned, are strongly in favor of immediate meat rationing.

The Japanese are in sore straights. They have been driven out of Gona, and are hemmed in around Buna, 14 miles south. They landed at Lae and Salamaua March 9, and took the Gona-Buna coastal sector July 22. Last September 21 they had crossed the Owen Stanley mountain range and were within 32 miles of our base at Port Moresby.

Then the allied counter drive started and swept the enemy back to the coast.

Now they are playing out their string, but they are definitely "bomb-happy."

DIVE TROOPERS MAY BE ADDED TO U. S. FORCES

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—"Dive troopers" who could make delayed parachute leaps from unseen stratospheric planes and land virtually without detection by the enemy were termed practical today by four physicians on the basis of test jumps made late in 1941 by Arthur H. Starnes, former stunt pilot.

Writing in the quarterly bulletin of the Northwestern Medical school, the four physicians said:

"Delayed parachute jumps from stratospheric heights are an entirely practical means of avoiding hazardous aerial situations such as the danger of a parachutist being shot down by the enemy."

THREE HURT SLIGHTLY IN HIGHWAY COLLISION

Three persons riding with Leo Skaggs, 19, of Deer Creek township, were bruised and cut but not seriously injured Thursday afternoon when the car and one driven by John Martindale, 47, also of Deer Creek township, collided in Williamsport.

Deputy Bryan Custer said Martindale was driving west on Route 22 and Skaggs was crossing Route 22, driving south, when the cars crashed under the traffic light which was not operating.

Injured were Luther Speakman, 5, Mrs. Leo Skaggs and Leo Speakman, 16. All were given treatment in the office of Dr. G. D. Sheets.

TO SHOPPERS

ALL: Nobody now can do his Christmas shopping early. It is already late. There are still things to be bought in stores, but many numbers have disappeared. Some will not return till after the war, some will be replaced with a difference. One thing can still be bought, and in quantity as great as the heart of the shopper may desire. That's War Bonds and War Savings stamps. The giver who buys them now for his child, his cousin, his friend or the elevator man in his office building is giving not merely one gift, but three. First, he is showing his good-will toward the person who receives, and that's the basic principle of Christmas. Second, he is giving a gift which will be good for ten years, increasing in value all the time. When the child now six becomes sixteen, he will be glad to count over the bonds in the family box at the bank, thankful the money was not spent on toys long since broken, but on something which can be used for that priceless treasure, education. The third gift is one given not only to the friend, but to all Americans. It's liberty. It is never too late for that glorious shopping.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: Preparations have been completed for Circleville's house-to-house campaign to explain the share the meat program to adult consumers. Plans for the campaign to bring about voluntary limitation of civilian meat consumption to an average of two and one-half pounds a week for each adult and adolescent were discussed at a meeting the other evening which was attended by nearly 100 Circleville women who will conduct the undertaking. They have been issued pamphlets which they will distribute in their neighborhoods. Each has a certain street to serve, and each is expected to do her duty. You should show her courtesy during her visit to your home because she has a job to do for Uncle Sam. Her "War Food Communique No. 1" is of much importance because it gives you the opportunity to help the nation in its task. Meat you conserve may give some soldier boy or some sailor, even your own son or your neighbor's, some food that he needs in his fight against the axis. Compliance with the two and one-half pounds of meat a week program will not work a hardship on anyone especially if good use is made of the large quantities of alternate foods readily available in adequate quantities.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON—That the United Nations will defeat the Axis is the increasingly evident consensus of opinion in governmental circles, in such important capitals as Washington and London. Judgments differ somewhat as to how long it will take, but the final outcome's practicality is generally agreed on. Economists are noting, however, that financial markets don't react as naturally would be expected, on the supposition that the international military outlook is a foregone conclusion. They don't manifest the cheerful confidence that might seem reasonably to be looked for. They're not depressed, but neither are they jubilant. This isn't to be interpreted, it seems, as an indication that the financiers are skeptical of the accuracy of the military folks' calculations concerning fighting prospects. Instead, the guessing concerns the sort of socio-economic world we're likely to graduate into at the current strife's end. The individual doubtless will continue to own his house and lot, the clothes he wears and any little retail business that may happen to have been left over to him. But how about big business that perhaps he's invested in?

The miniature firm of Jones & Smith presumably will survive, but how about the huge Jones-Smith corporation that the peevish parliament own a few shares in and on which they draw a few dollars in quarterly dividends? Taxes will be terrific on into the indefinite future. Wages are being governmentally frozen, so that the corporation won't be able to economize in that particular. Prices are being frozen also, so that the concern won't be able to get back to a pre-war break in that detail. Temporarily the Jones-Smith outfit has a sufficient bank account to wobble through the crisis—provided it doesn't last too long. But will all these wage floors and price ceilings be ripped out as soon as peace is restored? Or is it a new system that we're inadvertently being absorbed into?—that'll last on into post-war history? In short, will we ever succeed in re-establishing pre-war capitalism—employee-customer arithmetic? And then, tariffs? I've always been a free-trader, but these adjustments can be pretty disorganizing when decided suddenly. Market speculators, it appears, are suspicious that old times are gone forever. Just what's ahead is that our hitherto modern democracies will be involved, as well as our modern despotism, such as Russia, for instance. One question is: What's desirable for a man to work at?—not from his own self-able in adequate quantities. To Mrs. Eva B. Schulze, chief of the women's activities in the Circleville Civilian Defense Council, goes credit for organizing the city's block captains who will carry on this house-to-house work. She has done a splendid job in organizing the city block units.

CIRCUITEER.

TO 18-YEAR-OLDS

BOYS: You who were born between July 1, 1924, and August 31, 1924, started Friday to register for army service, and before very long you fellows will be in service. The draft board remains open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day for the next week, including Saturday, to assist youths who should be registered. You can help the board if you will not all try to register the first day, but will try to appear in the board offices at times which will be convenient for the board. Members of the office personnel have a lot of work to do and anything you can do to help them will be appreciated. Saturday afternoon would be a good time for you to register, since the employees will have their routine duties put aside during the afternoon so they will be free to help you. Other boys of 18 who have not yet registered will appear at other times prior to the first of the year.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WOMEN

FOLK: Women certainly are getting physically tough and resistant to disease. Who ever refers to them any more as the "frail" or "delicate" sex? Look at the way they dress, and how they get away with it. They used to bundle up and shrink from the cold, but now they go around cheerfully with only a few ounces of clothing to protect them from the wintry blasts. And instead of suffering and "catching colds" they seem to thrive. It wouldn't be surprising to find that their average health is now better than men's. The latter still carry around a rather heavy weight of clothing. But maybe this way of looking at it is putting the cart before the horse. Can it be that women are healthier not in spite of their reckless exposure to the elements, and their greater physical exertion, but because of it? And if this is the case, what a pity that the great discovery should have been so long delayed! Men might do well to look into this matter, before they themselves are reduced to comparatively delicate health, and tough and sturdy womanhood takes over everything.

CIRCUITEER.

TO COUNTY COMMUNITIES

RURALITES: Interest shown in the recent test alert planned by Civilian Defense and steps your mayors and trustees have taken in preparing for a blackout, date for which is approaching quicker than most persons expect prove that you are doing everything you can to make yourselves ready for any emergency that might develop because of the war. Nearly everyone has just about enough to do in this day and age when things are moving at an accelerated speed. No one likes to take on any more duties than those already assigned to him, but many of Pickaway county's rural leaders are doing a splendid job in Civilian Defense organization work. I hope that they will receive all the cooperation they need to perfect their various units.

Do Books or Garments Transmit Tuberculosis?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS A natural question and it is sent to me quite frequently by relatives and friends of patients with tuberculosis: they want to know whether articles which the tuberculous patient has handled are contaminated so that they can transmit the disease.

In general it may be said that there is very little practical danger of this. Books read by consumptives probably are occasionally contaminated by sputum in the form of droplets expelled during coughing or speaking as the book is held close to the face.

They may also be contaminated by licking the thumb or finger when turning the pages. But those who have studied the question agree that most of the germs deposited on the book pages become dry and dead after a short period of time. In one experiment papers were exposed to coughing patients and afterwards dried for one month. They were found to be free of tubercle bacilli and washings from the papers inoculated into guinea pigs did not affect the guinea pigs in a single instance.

In another experiment patients with advanced pulmonary tuberculosis and a great number of germs in the sputum were asked to handle books as carelessly as possible. They coughed on the marked pages, wet their thumbs with saliva when turning these pages. Scrapings were later derived from these pages, put in a solution and inoculated into guinea pigs and in no instance did any of the guinea pigs become infected with tuberculosis.

In the case of garments the same sort of experiments have been carried out. In a large sanatorium cultures were made from swabbings of bedside tables, lamps, bed frames and other articles in rooms occupied by tuberculous patients with uniformly negative results. None of the cultures showed a growth of tubercle bacilli. An almost certain way to prevent the contamination of articles in a sickroom occupied by a tuberculous patient is to allow sunlight to enter into the room as much as possible, preferably sunlight that is unfiltered by window glasses.

These experiments should not, however, give rise to a false sense of security and the following precautions are judicious:

1. The best way to ease the mind of the possibility of transmission of tuberculosis by a book is to store or quarantine the book for several weeks until any moisture which has been coughed upon it has completely dried.

2. As far as garments are concerned, the safest way is to expose them to the sun and air before storing them. There is no other method of disinfection that is so effective with the tubercle bacillus as sunlight and drying.

SYNOPSIS
A chance meeting in the San Francisco fog leads to a spur-of-the-moment marriage in Reno by PAIGE SHELTON, whose sweetheart has just been killed fighting for the Allies, and EUGENIA NORTH, his selfish fiancée. YESTERDAY: Paige tells Rusty that she will "kill that person" who cast suspicion on her in the jewel robbery.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN
THE GIRL'S vehemence bothered Restwick Carnes so much that he sat down beside her and demanded, "Whom are you talking about?" "That remains one of my little secrets," she said. "It seems to me you have several secrets." Paige gave him a cutting glance. "Well," he defended, "after all, I don't know anything about you. You are mysterious, you know. I simply found you strolling around in the fog—"

Paige groaned. "Ohhh! Are we back on that fog business?" She swung about to rest on her heels and face him directly. "So far as that goes, I found you strolling in the fog, too. Remember? And so far as I knew then you could have been the Titan Terror, in spite of all your big talk about the Honolulu Carnes clan. I didn't ask you a lot of questions."

"You didn't have to, I told you," Paige's head bobbed up and down. "I'll say you did. You prattled continually." Now perched on one foot, she was trying to move the heavy case. "Prattled?" screamed Rusty. "Simply because I was honest." "That shrieking is scarcely the accompaniment for such a virtuous remark," Paige chided in a falsely tender tone.

"Is that so?" Restwick Carnes said through gnashed teeth. "Well, neither is that creamy voice of yours an accompaniment for the way you're kicking that suitcase." He reached for it. "I'll put it under the bed for you."

"I'll do it myself!" "Give me that suitcase!" He snatched it from her with such momentum that she toppled and landed on her elbow.

"That's what you get for being so stubborn. I suppose you're going to tell me you've broken your arm."

His placid tone infuriated the girl. "I haven't broken anything," she shouted.

"Then why are you crying?" He finished shoving the heavy case beneath the bed, then turned to her again.

She dashed tears from her eyes. "I'm not crying!" "What a fool I am," she thought with repugnance. "What would he say if he knew how much I've been thinking about him, how much I've been depending on him?"

Restwick Carnes looked into his wife's smoldering face. What would she say, he thought, if I told her how close I came to kissing her just then, not sympathetically because she had bumped her elbow, but because I suddenly found her irresistible, because I wanted to kiss those pouting lips and force her into some emotion besides rage?

And then he knew he did not want to kiss her, because her expression had changed to one of sly cunning. She had forgotten Rusty. How, she was trying to explain to her own satisfaction, had Eugenia known about the robbery the preceding day, less than an hour from the time the Brazilians had gone chattering from their stateroom? Undoubtedly all that excitable talk had been at the time they discovered their loss. How had Eugenia known enough about it to be influenced, as she had been, by the sight of the gems in Paige's purse?

During the next three days Paige stayed in the stateroom, even taking her meals there. For some unaccountable reason she felt ashamed. She knew it was absurd. The ones to feel ashamed were the captain, the investigators, even more so, Rusty. The three officials had merely been doing their duty whereas Rusty, in a way, had failed her. After all her sentimental drive about his being protective!

And Eugenia! There was the one who really should be ashamed. "It's a good thing," Paige meditated murderously, "that I've stayed in my room. If I had encountered that treacherous blond, right after my compulsory interview, anything might have happened. Even now, I'd like to poke one of those brown eyes. Better still, both of them."

Restwick Carnes walked in while his wife was in the midst of her mental ranting. He dropped a new collection of slot machine quarters on the dressing table.

"Look what my liberty heads did for me. You can't beat them. They're thinner or something. Every time the machine was supposed to drop five it dropped six. Good old liberty heads." He was separating them from the newer coins with great care. "I'll probably break the Watson line completely tonight."

Paige spoke for the first time. Rather she laughed. "Haw! Haw!" like a street urchin.

Rusty looked at her reflection in the dressing table mirror. "Hey, spouse," he said, "there's been enough of this fireside moping. I'm fed up playing the deserted bridegroom. Even Eugenia is giving me the horse laugh." He began dragging out dinner clothes, dark trousers and a white dinner jacket, now that they finally had reached tropical climes. "Tonight is the captain's dinner and I think you should go."

The girl began brushing her hair with even more energetic strokes than she had been using. "Yes, I certainly owe the captain a lot of courtesy. Bless his heart!" she gritted. "But I'll go. I'm a little bit tired of this hibernation." Actually it was her husband's mention of Eugenia North that had spurred her decision to join the festivities of the last night on board the Mazatlan. Suddenly she wanted to see with her own eyes how the blond girl was behaving.

"Wear something de luxe-like," prompted Rusty.

He received another little honking insulting laugh. "Yes, dear. And do you think, dear, that it would be all right if I wore jewelry?" "Which is known as rubbing it in," he pulled a flat case from a drawer in his side of the dressing table and fished for ruby studs and cuff links. "Just be beautiful enough to shock that delighted grin off Eugenia's face. That's all I ask."

"I could do that easily," thought Paige. "If only I dared say what I believe. But I must be so very sure."

As it turned out, Paige did not wear jewels that evening. Her gown was too elaborate for further elaboration. The full skirt of mauve organza was trimmed with small bouquets of artificial violets. Similar blossoms encircled the high throatline of the bodice, purple blossoms on a narrow band that became two at the shoulders and criss-crossed over her bare back.

Rusty's comment on the absence of jewelry flabbergasted her. "It's a good thing you aren't wearing any," he stressed. "There are jewel thieves on board, you know."

She hooted. "You're telling me!" After a frowning scrutiny of his face, she said, "Well, don't look so insulted. It was a dumb remark. What's come over you, anyway?" "It has just dawned that if they have taken someone else's stuff they might take yours, too."

"Amazing deduction!" Her badinage brought the familiar rudeness. "Where are yours?" he insisted.

"Really, Rusty, I'm beginning to wonder if you aren't the jewel thief yourself." Her smile saved the instant cut, however, and for an instant she stood watching the blue leanness melt from his eyes. She patted a muff of purple violets. "They're still in the gray purse inside this thing. I'll bet you thought it was a pillow." Rather critically she eyed herself in the full-length mirror of the bathroom door. "Rusty, I feel like a fool in this garb, even though it did cost a young fortune; but I'm sure it is just the Arabian Nights affair to impress Eugenia."

"You look beautiful," the man said lightly. "Beautiful," he repeated, but this time his voice sounded edgy, as if he were unconsciously husky. That was her trouble, he told himself savagely. She was too beautiful! Beautiful enough to make a fool of a man. He jerked at her arm and said shortly, "Come on."

During the bountiful captain's dinner he was sulky and uncommunicative. The meal was long and elaborate: mountains of olives, crisp celery hearts, pineapple juice, chicken consommé, creamed sea food, filet mignon, salad, ice cream replica of the Mazatlan, complete with baby American flag; cakes and coffee. Rusty had two white breads de menthe frappes with brandy collars. The dinner demolished an hour and a half.

Yet he made only one statement and that was when he had finished his second after-dinner drink. "I feel as stuffed as a luau pig."

The man ignored her insolent ridicule. "Let's get up to A-deck and nab a good table. Don't forget to put your cheek against mine when we dance."

"Eugenia will be watching," Paige said silently. The knowledge that she was furious made her more furious. What do I care, she demanded of herself. "He's nothing to me. Why do I want to hit him? He's nothing to me," she said again. "Nothing!"

Today's Horoscope
The persons who have birthdays today are governed by impulsiveness, discerning minds and a faculty for amusing and entertaining others. They read a great deal and are well-informed. They also have quick tempers and are easily depressed by minor troubles. They should strive to be more tolerant and less radical in action. Their prospects for the next 12 months are exceedingly propitious, but they should guard against sudden quarrels. Benefits, expected and unexpected, through successful business deals, secret activities, elders, strangers, law and martial affairs are foreseen. The child who is born on this date will be remarkably fortunate, very popular, strong-minded, far-seeing, industrious, just, sincere, religious, broad-minded, generous, magnanimous and highly intellectual.

Rotarians, Guests Hear Dr. Harlan Wilson Speak

Work In England Discussed At Annual Fete

Outstanding for fine entertainment was the Rotary-Ann party Thursday at the Pickaway Arms, 75 members and guests of the Rotary club gathering for the annual affair. Dr. Harlan Wilson of Columbus as guest speaker held the close attention of the group as he told of personal experiences when in England during six months of this year.

Dr. Wilson spoke of the fine morale of the English people which he said can never be broken. He told of their endurance of terrible war experiences. Especially he discussed the establishment of the hospital at Oxford and showed about 300 feet of film of views of the institution, the operating and special treatment rooms, and of patients undergoing surgical treatment. Dr. Wilson's talk was well-received, bringing to the audience a more keen understanding of the trials of civilians in war times.

An excellent turkey dinner was served at long tables centered with vases of dark red roses, the roses being presented as favors to the ladies at the close of the meeting. These roses, and the lovely bouquet centering the speaker's table, were gifts from Rotarian R. L. Bremer, who also provided the screen and projector for the pictures shown by Dr. Wilson.

Music was furnished by the Kiwanettes, directed by Miss Marjorie Vorhees the many selections being splendidly presented and enthusiastically received. Group singing was another pleasing feature of the entertainment.

Seated at the speaker's table in addition to Dr. Wilson and Miss Mary Brown of Columbus, his secretary, were Mr. and Mrs. Eldred A. Cayce, Judge and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. May, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore, Karl Mason, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Phillips and Ray Rowland.

Those responsible for the fine dinner meeting were Mr. Cayce, Judge Terwilliger and Mr. Mason.

State Grange

Mrs. Turney Glick, Pickaway county juvenile grange matron, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Beers, Scioto grange and Mrs. Homer Wright, Salter Creek Valley grange, attended the session of the Ohio State grange in Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Beers as delegates and Mrs. Wright, as an alternate for the county.

Honors awarded Pickaway county granges included recognition of Washington juvenile grange as one of the championship granges of the state.

Mrs. S. L. Warner, Washington grange, won third place in the State Bread baking contest. There were 57 entries.

Pickaway County also received the state banner for home economic work in the community.

Honors were announced at the banquet Wednesday evening and grangers receiving them were introduced at the affair.

Ladies' Society

Christ Lutheran Ladies' society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Lyle Davis, Jackson township, the Rev. George L. Troutman conducting the business and devotional hour. Mrs. George List read the missionary topic.

Election of officers found the Rev. Mr. Troutman again chosen for president; Mrs. Ellis List, vice president; Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel, secretary; Mrs. Noah List, treasurer. Mrs. G. L. Troutman, pianist; Mrs. John List, reporting secretary.

Eighteen members and guests were present. A covered dish lunch was served and members enjoyed an exchange of Christmas gifts during the social hour.

Heber Chapter O.E.S.

Annual installation ceremonies for officers of Heber chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, Williamsport, were held Thursday in Masonic temple of the village with Mrs. Clarence McAbee of Wayne township as installing officer. Mrs. Ida Ware was installed as worthy matron and Joseph Varney, worthy patron.

Miss Margie Carman was inducted as associate matron and Merrill, as associate patron.

Mrs. Dwight Rector, served as installing organist; Mrs. Fannie Carman, installing secretary, and Miss Della Smith, installing ward.

Lunch was served during the social hour following the formal meeting.

Ashville Garden Club

The annual Christmas tea of the Ashville Garden club was held Thursday at the home of Mrs. Homer Reber with 20 members candles. Christmas candles burned at each end of the table.

An exchange of gifts completed the plans for the delightful affair.

Joint Meeting

Farm Bureau councils 3 and 4 held a joint meeting Thursday in Jackson school auditorium with 45 members and guests present. After a fine cooperative supper, the councils met separately for short business sessions and then met jointly, to discuss farm problems.

The main topic of discussion centered in a letter from Perry Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, written in answer to a letter from Council No. 3 in which many questions were asked concerning the attitude of the Ohio State Farm Bureau toward present-day farm problems. Very responsive open discussion followed, the group going on record by saying that "parity should be figured at the present date with industry, labor and agriculture."

The group voted to have one joint meeting each year of the advisory councils of Jackson township.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Velma Thomas, Dorothy Hodgson, Wanda Hinton, Emogene Newton and Caroline Fischer.

Salem Ladies' Aid

Salem Ladies' Aid society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Merle McAfee, Pickaway township, with 20 members and guests present. Mrs. Frank McAfee was assisting hostess.

Mrs. Edgar Harral, president, led the business hour. The Rev. L. T. Wilkin of Kingston read the Christmas lesson from Luke 2 and offered prayer.

Mrs. Jessie Hildenbrand, chairman of the ways and means committee, asked each member to take a chicken to the January meeting.

The program included a duet, "Silent Night," by Mrs. F. A. Kirk and Mrs. Elmer Dodd and three readings, "The Lighted Candle," "What Christmas Means to the World" and "A Christmas Blessing," by Mrs. L. T. Wilkin. The group sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as the closing number.

The social hour was marked by an exchange of gifts and a seasonal lunch.

Tuxis Club

Fifteen members attended the meeting of Tuxis club Thursday in the social room of the Presbyterian church. During the business hour, plans were discussed for entertaining the first and second football teams, managers and coaches at a party to be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

The hospitality committee named for the affair includes Mary Ellen Fissell, Maxine Friedman, William Rutherford, Paul Siegwald, Barbara Helwagen, George Helwagen, Charles Will and Mona Lee Hanley.

"Christmas and Literature" was the topic discussed during the study period. Games were enjoyed and lunch was served. The lunch was served by Dudley Coffland, Martha Hulse and Ann Snider.

Art Sewing Club

Miss Laura Mantle will entertain the Art Sewing club at a Christmas party Wednesday at 8 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home.

Logan Elm Grange

An excellent Christmas program will be presented Tuesday at the meeting of Logan Elm grange in Pickaway school auditorium. A cooperative dinner will be served at 7 p. m. The grange will furnish hot rolls for the dinner and members are requested to take table service.

Holiday Vacation

Miss Betty Clifton, a senior at Greenbrier college, Lewisburg, W. Va., will attend the Christmas Dance given by the cadets of Greenbrier Military school in Lewisburg, December 12. She will arrive in Circleville December 17 to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clifton.

Mrs. William Fischer Sr. and Mrs. William Fischer Jr. of Ashville were Thursday shopping visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Clarence McAbee of Wayne township shopped in Circleville Thursday.

To increase food resources during wartime, the Fish and Wildlife Service, U. S. department of the Interior, has initiated an investigation on the biology, cultivation and utilization of the common mussel. Mussels, like other shellfish, have a high nutritive value.

Loretta Young will play the part of Gaby, glamorous French girl beloved of Pepe Le Moko (Charles Boyer), in Cecil B. DeMille's Radio Theatre adaptation of the film "Algiers" Monday December 14 at 9 p. m. over CBS.

The scene of "Algiers," fast-paced melodrama, is the mysterious Casbah, native quarter of the ancient north African city. Supporting roles will be played by J. Carroll Nash as Inspector Slimane and Gene Lockhart as Regis.

PETER LORRE

A macabre study based on the eternal struggle of life and death.—of strange proceedings in a mad scientist's laboratory—these are the elements in the latest spine-chilling drama that will feature Peter Lorre on the Inner Sanctum Mystery for Sunday, December 13. The title of the script is "The Man Who Returned From the Dead."

KYSER'S WORK LIKED

Kay Kyser's recording of "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" was the most popular selection of the month with juke box nickel-droppers, according to a survey made in Chicago. The report showed that Kyser's band played three of the ten most popular recordings of the month. Others were his waxing of "Strip Polka," not heard on the air, and "Every Night About This Time."

PRO FOOTBALL

The 1942 professional football championship game, matching the powerful Chicago Bears, western division winners, and the Washington Redskins, eastern title holders, will be broadcast exclusively on MBS-WKRC, Sunday, December 13, beginning at 1:45 p. m. with kickoff at 2 p. m.

Harry Wismer, well-known network football announcer will do the play-by-play account. Two "color" men, Russ Hodges and Jack Dreese, will assist Wismer. All three will donate their entire salary to one of the service's relief societies.

The game, climax of the professional football season, will be played in Griffith stadium, Washington, D. C., home of the Redskins. The play-off re-matches the 1940 winners. The Bears won that game by a wide margin but grid expect a stiffer battle this time.

Final Mass Registration for War Under Way in County

YOUTHS BEING LISTED AT CITY DRAFT OFFICE

Teen Aged From Now On Required To Be Listed On Birthdays

CLASSIFICATION STARTED

Older Boys Expected To Be Called To Colors Next Month

With the war's final mass registration for service in Uncle Sam's army under way Friday, Pickaway county Selective Service office has started sending notices of classification to youths of 18 and 19 years of age who were registered last June.

Many of the fifth registration group have already received notices of classification and have been told that older boys of this group can expect to be assigned for induction in January. No lottery was conducted for the fifth registration, so ages are used to determine the order in which youngsters will go into service.

Youths Aided

Draft officials started their registration machinery Friday to sign boys born between July 1, 1924, and August 31, 1924, these youths having become 18 since the June registration. Draft board offices will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day except Sunday to assist the youths fill out their papers. No extra help is being obtained since the board estimated that not more than 100 boys of the city and county have become 18 since the June registration. Registration for this age group will be concluded next Friday.

Two additional periods have been designated for other boys of 18. Youths born between September 1, 1924, and not after October 31, 1924, will register from December 18 to 24, and youths born between November 1, 1924, and December 31, 1924, will sign up between December 26 and December 31.

Register On Birthday

During the continuance of the war boys will register with their draft board on the day they reach 18.

First contingent of men assigned to fill the county's December quota will be sent to Columbus early next week to be examined by the army medical team. This group will be the first sent short from Pickaway county, 10 men who have reached 38 being stricken from the list under Washington orders. They have been placed in 4-H. The second contingent to be sent a week later will be short, also, since sufficient men were not available to fill the call without dipping into the married man class. Had the 38 year ruling been put into effect in January instead of December the board would have had sufficient men to fill the quota.

Group Exhausted

The December contingents will clean up all available single men listed by the board and all men of late marriages, that is men married after registration.

Men who are married and have only wives for dependents owe a vote of thanks to the Selective Service board for not assigning them to service before the holidays. The board maintained a stand that no men married before registration or before induction was imminent should be taken ahead of others of the same group. Had the board processed files of married men of this group some could have been taken to fill quotas in December, while others would not have been taken until the 18 and 19 year old boys had gone into service.

Married Men To Go

As matters stand at present the men of the married class will be sent at the same time, instead of a few being inducted ahead of the 18-19 year olds and the remainder waiting until this group had been exhausted.

Draft board expressed belief Friday that the married group may be called up earlier than expected any way, since some of the boys of the fifth registration who would have gone into service in January or February are still in school and are entitled to deferments until this year's study is ended, if they ask deferments in writing. Many have done so and have been placed in class 2-B, meaning a temporary deferment. Many other 18 and 19 year old boys have been placed in class 2-C, meaning that they are essential to agriculture. These boys will be

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clifton of 131 Park place are parents of twin daughters born Friday in Berger hospital.

Roy Knece of Laurelville Route 2 was removed home Friday from Berger hospital. He is recovering from injuries suffered at the Estelma mill a week ago.

WEARING ARMY UNIFORM LEADS TO INDICTMENT

Ben K. Keeton of Chillicothe, arrested in Circleville three weeks ago for unlawfully wearing a military uniform after he had been dishonorably discharged from the army, was indicted Friday by federal grand jury.

Keeton was nabbed by Circleville police and military police from the Lockbourne air base. He told authorities that he merely wanted to put on a show "for the girls." He was wearing the stripes of a sergeant.

Keeton faces confinement in a federal institution if found guilty.

WORD AWAITED FREEING FROZEN FARM MACHINES

John G. Boggs, AAA and county War Board chairman, is awaiting word from the Ohio Agricultural War Board concerning distribution of heavy farm machinery now frozen in hands of distributors and manufacturers. During the next week the War Board may inform all county units concerning their quotas for sale of heavy machines imperative to production of imperative foods.

Only 75 percent of the total amount of machinery allotted for sale in Ohio will be sold, Elmer F. Kruse, state War Board chief, said, since 25 percent will be held in reserve to be used in cases where county quotas are not sufficient.

Control over sale of heavy farm equipment became necessary when the government in 1942 allotted materials to construct only 23 percent of the machines that were built in 1940.

deferred so long as they remain on the farm, engaged in farm labor, and as long as they are essential to production of food.

Many Volunteer

Many other 18 and 19 year olds have volunteered for service, this, too, cutting down the list of available registrants.

Draft board has received instructions from state headquarters to start reclassifying married men who have only wives as dependents, and indications are that the first men from this class may be taken into service as early as March. It is believed that enough fifth registration youths will be available to fill January and February calls, barring any unusual demands by state Selective Service officials.

Here It Is For Next Year

Clear off a space five and five-eighths inches wide and two inches deep on the windshield of your automobile or truck for another sticker, Hal G. Sours, director of the Ohio Department of Highways, advised today.

Red stickers for passenger cars and yellow stickers for trucks are to be used next year in Ohio in lieu of new license plates. They must be displayed by April 1 in the lower right hand corner of the windshield. There will also be red stickers for motorcycles and yellow ones for trailers.

Present license plates on all automotive vehicles and trailers

must be kept on the vehicles throughout next year.

Only one sticker will be used on each car or truck. The sticker may be purchased after March 1 at any deputy registrar's office.

No reservations, special number or initial combinations will be available next year. Present plates of that character are to be used.

Jap Collapse as Major Air Power Indicated

BATTLE REPORTS SHOW U. S. IN CONTROL OF SKY

American Pilots Encounter Little Opposition In Pacific Theatre

NAVY MEN OPTIMISTIC

Cream Of Tokyo's Pilot Personnel Lost In Coral Sea, Midway Fights

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Virtual collapse of Japan as a major air power is reflected today in battle reports which show that American army, navy and marine corps airmen control the skies in every active Pacific war theater.

In the Aleutians, the Solomons and New Guinea U. S. combat pilots have encountered little or no aerial opposition for weeks. This fact alone foreshadows an early aerial offensive against Japan based on New Britain and the Northern Solomons.

Navy men believe that even Truk, Nippon's greatest and most powerful Pacific base, may become a target for aerial attack when American and United Nations forces are able to expand their present airfield facilities.

According to these sources, Japan lost the cream of its pilot personnel in the long string of defeats in the Coral Sea, Midway and in the Solomons campaign.

With the destruction of the major portion of Japan's carrier fleet in those battles, naval sources believe firmly that the Japs lost their "first team," and that the enemy will be unable to catch up with America's plane construction and pilot training programs.

The result has been that the Japanese garrisons in New Guinea, Guadalcanal and the Aleutians now face annihilation because the enemy is unable to give them adequate air support.

Although Japan still is believed to have formidable air reserves, war analysts assert that these are now spread over wide areas throughout the Pacific to protect vital bases and Japan itself.

Just how one-sided the Pacific air conflict has become is disclosed by official communiques which show that in the Southern Solomons alone American pilots have destroyed more than 625 planes.

In the Aleutians, U. S. army fliers based in the Andreanof islands have been able to bomb the Jap garrisons on Kiska and Attu without encountering air opposition.

SOOT SCRAPED FROM VESSELS AIDS WAR EFFORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—America's war salvage effort is closely vying with the efficiency of Chicago meat packers, often credited with making use of "everything but the squeal."

The War Production Board disclosed today that some 18,100 pounds of soot has been scraped from American vessels putting into port in the last year. The dust yields vanadium oxide which is used to toughen steel for armor plate.

ONE LOAD OF MUNITIONS ROMMEL FAILED TO GET

Allied bombers saw to it that this train loaded with munitions for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's North African army never reached its destination. Twisted track, parts of railroad cars and unexploded projectiles were found scattered across the desert after British forces reached the spot, near Mersa Matruh.

SENATORS OKEH GAS RATIONING

Simplification Of System, However, Recommended By Investigators

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The Senate War Investigating committee today called for simplification of gasoline and fuel oil rationing while at the same time declaring that rationing is necessary and warning of an increasing shortage of fuel oil in the future.

The committee's report, which was submitted to the senate by Chairman Harry S. Truman (D) Mo., after an exhaustive inquiry, assailed government bureaus and complicating the problem by lack of prompt action to provide pipeline and barge transportation.

Highlights of the report follow: 1. A straight-line percentage cut should have been made in fuel oil allotments. Instead, bureaucrats examined temperatures for 43 years and produced a complex and unfair rationing method.

2. Farmers and other truck owners have difficulty in getting gas ration applications and have even greater difficulty understanding a 32-page book of instructions. Local boards should have responsibility for rationing.

3. Gasoline rationing to save rubber, recommended by the Truman committee 3½ months ahead of the Baruch report, is necessary.

4. Farmers should be given tractor fuel without rationing.

5. Fuel oil rationing is necessary because of spotted shortages and general transportation problems. Supplies are likely to decrease in 1943 and 1944.

6. Government should force conversion to coal, even to furnishing grates to home owners. This would be cheaper than subsidizing fuel oil transportation by tank cars.

7. Government bureaus were at fault for not authorizing pipeline construction earlier. The inland waterway barge program has bogged down.

Urging that rationing methods be simplified, the report said: "The committee believes that the American people, when informed of the facts as to shortages such as this, are willing to make the necessary sacrifices and that they can be trusted to play fair

BEEES GET ADDITIONAL ALLOTMENT OF SUGAR

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 11—Certain New Jersey farmers to-day were allowed to make greatly increased purchases of sugar to keep the bees alive. Bee-keepers are allowed extra rations of three pounds of sugar per month for each colony.

LUDLOW SPIKES AXIS INSPIRED RUMOR ON BONDS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11—Benjamin Ludlow, Pennsylvania administrator of war savings, today spiked the axis-inspired rumor that was believed responsible for an unusually large number of redemptions of War Savings Bonds in the last few days.

Many members of industrial payroll savings groups, when questioned, said they were told the government was going to freeze money for the redemption of bonds on January 1.

This is a "fifth column rumor," Ludlow stated. "Unfounded talk, who have been rushing to the postoffice to give notice of withdrawal, are stabbing in the back our own boys in North Africa and Guadalcanal."

Uncle Sam has a contract with every bondholder. That contract will be kept after the first of the year as well as before.

PUT ON YOUR RED FLANNELS, DOCTOR ADVISES

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—To those who find the 65 degree room temperature, which fuel oil rationing may impose, a bit on the chilly side Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, had this recommendation today.

"Put on your old red flannels and put a pan of water on the radiator."

The virtues of red flannels, he said, should not be discounted merely because they hardly are the vogue these modern days. And water on the radiators, he added, would provide the proper humidity.

Ag Department Boosts Rationing of Meat as Solution to Shortage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Agriculture department officials today stated that meat rationing is the only full solution to critical meat shortages in such defense centers as Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

"Voluntary rationing, such as we have now, won't work," department sources said.

"At present, it is first come, first served in butcher shops throughout the nation. There is really nothing akin to a fair distribution system for meat."

BREAK SEEN IN HUN LEADERSHIP

New General From Gestapo Replaces Special Pet Of Hitler's

LONDON, Dec. 11—Increasing evidence that Adolf Hitler has broken not only with old-line Prussian military leadership, but with many of the militarists he himself raised from obscurity was seen today in appointment of Col. Gen. Kurt Zeitzler, one of Heinrich Himmler's "gangsters" as new chief of the German general staff.

Most of Hitler's recent military appointments have been representatives of the Prussian "old guard" such as Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, replaced by out-and-out loyal Nazis.

But in this case, Zeitzler replaces one of Hitler's own pets. Gen. Franz Halder, long despised by the junker generals for his lack of aristocratic military training and his willingness since the "beer hall" days to function as nothing more or less than "yes-man" to the Fuehrer.

Early Nazi Halder was one of the original Nazi military triumvirate, the others being Field Marshal Erwin Rommel and General Alfred Jodl. Hitler lifted these three men up by their bootstraps, placing them (Continued on Page Three)

Ag Department Boosts Rationing of Meat as Solution to Shortage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Agriculture department officials today stated that meat rationing is the only full solution to critical meat shortages in such defense centers as Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

"Voluntary rationing, such as we have now, won't work," department sources said.

"At present, it is first come, first served in butcher shops throughout the nation. There is really nothing akin to a fair distribution system for meat."

It was indicated that, with Food Administrator Wickard's appointment of a director of food distribution, nation-wide rationing of meat will come soon, possibly within the next two to three weeks. Meanwhile, the OPA moved to

Air Attack Impossible Without Endangering Church Center

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—Authoritative sources in Washington today disclosed that the Vatican has made strong appeals to the United States and Great Britain to spare Rome from aerial bombardment.

As a result of the Vatican appeals, the view prevails in informed quarters that Rome may be spared from the devastating aerial attacks which are now being carried out against other Italian cities.

The Vatican, it was learned authoritatively, takes the position that Rome is a holy city and that, in view of the sacred place it holds in Christianity, it should be spared from destruction.

Respect for Church

Consideration for the Vatican's attitude, and especially reluctance to endanger the Vatican city itself, is understood to be largely, if not entirely, responsible for the fact that Rome has not been bombed.

The Italian capital is regarded as a vitally important military objective. It serves as a main junction for railway communication with southern Italy and the supply route to North Africa via Sicily. Destruction of its railway bottleneck would, informed sources believe, seriously affect the shipment of troops and war supplies from Germany to the axis forces in Tunisia and Libya.

Vatican Endangered

However, those familiar with the lay-out of Rome believe it would be almost impossible to subject the city to heavy aerial bombardment without damaging the (Continued on Page Three)

3,000 AIRPLANES AND 4000 TANKS SENT TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The extent of American and British war aid to Russia was indicated today in a statement by RAF Vice-Marshal F. MacNeece Foster that the Soviets have been sent 3,000 planes and 4,000 tanks in the last year.

Speaking at a Russian war relief dinner, Foster also disclosed that more than 30,000 vehicles and 800,000 tons of miscellaneous cargo also was shipped.

"Without the great flow of munitions of war from the United States and from England," he said, "even the most fervent admirer of the great effort which we now record may well believe that the defenders of Stalingrad and the reserves accumulated for the subsequent attacks would have been well-nigh impossible."

"Such a statement is not for one moment to disparage in the slightest degree the splendid contribution of the Russian people; any people less brave and resolute would have been defeated long before now, even if they had received reinforcements ten times as great as those which have been sent."

BARTENDERS WILL FIGHT WOMEN TO LAST DITCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—They're in factories, mills and "workin' on the railroad." They're in the Army, Navy and the air force.

The New York Bartenders' Union today was still steadfast that women shall not replace men behind the mahogany "stick."

Doomed Japanese Fight And Die Like Cornered Rats in New Guinea

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 11—The remnants of the Japanese garrisons on the southeast New Guinea coast are doomed and they know it. They are fighting like cornered rats and must be killed one by one.

And that is exactly what the American and Australian jungle fighters are doing.

The Japanese have been forced back on a thin fringe of beach and coastal jungle around Buna, but they are strongly entrenched. Encircling the village stronghold is an almost solid line of machine gun and mortar positions, which have to be cleared out one at a time.

The enemy has been too hard pressed to bury its dead, and the stench of the decomposing bodies is almost unbearable. The ruthless, hard-boiled Japanese have donned gas masks and obviously are determined to fight to the last man.

But the Yanks and Aussies are tough, too. And they are convinced that they are the masters of the vaunted Nipponese who made a reputation as invincibles in their rapid drive through the Malayan jungles to Singapore.

"They were supposed to be world beaters, but we have their number," said Private Albert Wynne of Detroit, who came back to a field hospital today with a slight wound.

"We gave them a good going-over around Buna. After our planes pounded their positions we went in with hand grenades and bayonets, and they didn't like it."

"There were Jap bodies all around—hundreds of them. We stumbled over them getting to the live ones."

"It was hard going, I'll admit. We had to root them out one by one, but we did it."

"We've seen the best they have, including the Jap marines, and we (Continued on Page Three)

NO ONE LEFT IN TURIN TO FIGHT RAGING FLAMES

LONDON, Dec. 11—The bombed Italian industrial center of Turin still was in flames last night as a result of Wednesday's heavy British air raid, a dispatch to the Daily Express from "somewhere inside Europe" said today.

It was said that there was no one left in the city to put out the fires started by the Royal Air Force, and that there was no water to pour on the flames.

The evacuation of Turin, which also was attacked on Tuesday, was said to be "complete." Even air raid precaution workers got out, it was added.

NELSON DUNLAP, SON OF RENICK DUNLAP, DIES

Nelson Dunlap, 41, of Mobile, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. Renick W. Dunlap of Pickaway township, died at 9 a. m. Friday in Mount Carmel hospital, Columbus. Mr. Dunlap, whose grandfather, Nelson J. Dunlap, 99, of Kingston, died Wednesday, submitted to an abdominal operation December 1 in the Columbus hospital. Several blood transfusions were given him earlier in the week.

Funeral services for Mr. Dunlap's grandfather were conducted Friday afternoon at his home in Kingston, the venerable retired farmer having been one of the best known men in south central Ohio.

The younger Mr. Dunlap had been living in Mobile while employed in the nursery division of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Mr. Dunlap was a member of the Ohio State university football team in 1921-22-23, and was the first son of a Varsity "O" winner to earn his letter. His father was captain of the Ohio State team in 1895.

Born in Circleville, February 16, 1902, he was graduated from Ohio State in 1924. He attended Culver Military academy before entering Ohio State.

His survivors include his parents, his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Dunlap, a native of Chicago, and a sister, Mary, wife of Carl Smith of Rochester, N. Y.

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at the Renick Dunlap residence, east of Kingston.

Allied Forces In New Guinea Close In On Japs On Papuan Coast

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11—The War Department announced today that powerful artillery batteries of the allied forces has forced the retreat of half of a two-pronged heavy axis attack southwest of Tebourba.

A communique said that two enemy tank columns, supported by infantry had launched a double attack on allied positions near Merjez El Bab, 18 miles southwest of Tebourba.

BULLETIN

Fearful Of Italy London, Dec. 11—A Reuter dispatch from Moscow reported today that Adolf Hitler is sounding out Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania regarding their attitude in event of Italy's withdrawal from the war.

The dispatch gave no details beyond saying that Hitler had instructed his envoys in Budapest, Sofia and Bucharest to make appropriate inquiries.

While lacking any official confirmation whatever, the report naturally revived speculation over the possibility of an early internal collapse in Italy.

By International News Service Axis tank forces in Tunisia launched a desperate attack on allied lines today as deserters reported that the enemy was running short of food, dispatches from the North African front reported today.

Details of the fighting were meager, but it was believed that the British first army, aided by American mechanized forces, was standing up to the enemy assaults.

Reinforcements were reported to be flowing into the axis lines as additional allied troops and equipment moved up to the battlefield. The enemy made numerous bold thrusts into the allied lines and hammered the exposed flanks of Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's forces as both sides appeared to be waging a waiting battle until additional strength can be accumulated.

On the southern arm of the allied pincers drive in Africa, the British eighth army in Libya harassed the enemy line in the El Agheila area, and reports from the middle east command headquarters said the enemy was showing signs of nervousness.

Fry Into Defenses

Allied patrols were prying into the axis defenses, giving the enemy no rest.

RAF and American fighter and bomber planes were active over the Libyan battlefield and ranged up to Tunisia to attack axis airfields and docks on the north African coast.

WAR OBJECTOR GETS FIVE YEAR JAIL SENTENCE

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 11—Declaring that if everyone said he was opposed to war he would have the Nazis and Japs right on our backs, Judge John H. Druffel, of the southern district U. S. court, today threw the book at Forrest Ruth, 33, of Wheelersburg, O., who professes to be a Jehovah's Witness preacher.

Ruth, who pleaded objection to war because of his religious beliefs, was sentenced to five years in a federal prison. He was specifically charged with violation of the Selective Service act.

The Wheelersburg man claimed nine-year affiliation with the Witness sect.

pressed back on a narrowing beachhead in the vicinity of Buna, 14 miles south of Gona.

The Japanese fought with the fury of cornered rats, and manned strong positions on the outskirts of Buna, but their fate appeared sealed. A series of frantic counter-attacks were smashed by American and Australian jungle fighters closing in on the remnants of the enemy invasion force which landed on the coast last July and subsequently drove to within 32 miles of the allied base at Port Moresby.

Italy Gets Respite
RAF bombers gave Italy a respite from the devastating campaign of systematic destruction promised by Winston Churchill, but Italian nervousness increased.

Great fires were reported still raging in Turin, North Italian industrial center which was heavily bombed Wednesday and Thursday nights by formidable forces of RAF heavy bombers.

The great Russian offensives on the Stalingrad and Moscow fronts moved ahead at reduced pace after overcoming strenuous axis resistance. The German high command rushed airborne reinforcements to critical points on the 80-mile battle line, but failed to check the Soviet advance.

An additional 3,500 axis troops were reported killed in local engagements in which Soviet forces smashed into German positions.

NINE-FOLD HOIST IN PRODUCTION IS BUICK'S AIM

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—With several thousand Pratt and Whitney engines already turned out for American bombing planes, the Melrose park plant of the Buick division of General Motors was engaged in expansion operations today for a nine-fold increase in production on the basis of its original equipment.

The announcement of the expansion program and the completion of the first two contracts for bomber engines at the end of November was made by Harlow H. Curtice, G. M. vice president and general manager of Buick, during a visit in Chicago.

Several additions to the Buick plant already have been constructed, and another now is being built and is expected to be completed early next year, Curtice said.

"The rapid increase in volume in the Buick plants during the last 19 months has made possible the completion of the first two contract requirements of several thousand engines by the end of November which, under the original plans, would have taken another year," Curtice said.

"In accomplishing this, plant and equipment have been expanded many times and additional facilities are being produced to meet an unprecedented mass production volume of aircraft engines."

Reports from the battlefronts tell of the high performances of the engines which are said to be running "cool," enabling them to reach high altitudes, Curtice said.

JAMES ROBINSON TO BE FREED FROM MANSFIELD

James Robinson, 20-year-old New Orleans Negro, will be released from the Ohio reformatory at Mansfield May 1 after serving two and one-half years of a one to 20 year term for burglary and larceny of the Gallaher drug store, West Main street.

Robinson was sent to the institution in November, 1940, after admitting breaking into the drug store with two other youths, one of whom is now at Boys' Industrial school near Lancaster and the other remaining in the reformatory.

The Louisiana youth was a fugitive from the Fleming, Ky., jail when he was caught here.

18 TIRE INSPECTORS DISCUSS REGULATIONS

Eighteen tire inspectors serving Circleville and Pickaway county motorists under OPA authority gathered in city hall rationing offices Thursday evening to discuss rules and regulations for inspection which is under way at the present time.

All automobile owners who received gasoline ration books must have their tires inspected before February 1, rationing officials urging that inspection be conducted as soon as possible to avoid the rush certain to come the last of January.

MOTHER QUITS BABY GIRL FOR FOURTH TIME

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—Two and one half year old Gene Forman is truly a "forgotten child." Today, for the fourth time in eight months, she was in a children's shelter as an abandoned waif.

Last April she was found in a playground; on November 22, in a hotel lobby, and just a few weeks ago in a rooming house. Yesterday, the proprietor of still another rooming house again brought her to police.

According to authorities, the child's mother, Mrs. Norah Forman, has been taken to a hospital for treatment of alcoholism. The baby's father is employed by a steamship line.

in positions of authority far above that of many old-line officers, holdovers from the imperial days and veterans of the staff college.

Privately, according to believable reports, Halder, Rommel and Jodl long have been the butts of ridicule on the part of the junkers. But Hitler trusted them implicitly.

Reports were current some weeks ago that Hitler had temporarily dismissed Halder, accusing him of failing to keep up with his own ambitions in Russia. Hitler was reported to have summoned Halder to headquarters and after berating him for inefficiency and thanking him half-heartedly for what had been done, concluded with the words:

"You may go."

Complete Surprise
Appointment of Zettler as his successor, however, came as a complete surprise. All that is known of this new general except for some fulsome words of praise over his physique and mentality broadcast by the German radio is that he is 44 and hitherto was attached to Hitler's headquarters as Himmler's personal representative.

The changeover, of course, allows for limitless speculation, in view of persistent rumors that the old-line generals were hankering for some sort of anti-Hitler "putsch" and a makeshift peace with the allies, plus reports that Himmler, through his gestapo, is gradually tunneling his way into power over the German army and perhaps over Hitler himself.

JANE B. LEIST, KINGSTON STORE OPERATOR, DIES

Mrs. Jane B. Leist, 68, a resident of Kingston for 40 years, died Thursday in University hospital, Columbus. She was owner of a grocery store in Kingston.

Born December 8, 1874, in Washington C. H., she was a daughter of Robert and Asenath Blanchard. Her husband, Francis R. Leist, preceded her in death.

Survivors include a son, James B. Leist of Dayton; two grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Dalbey, Kingston.

Funeral services will be Saturday at the Mount Pleasant Presbyterian church, Kingston, the Rev. L. V. Baugness officiating with burial in the village cemetery by L. E. Hill.

WILLIAM HORN DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

William Horn, 52, a resident of Pickaway county for many years, died Thursday at 9:32 p. m. at his home, 432 East Union street, of organic heart disease after illness of two years. Mr. Horn was a native of Hocking county, born March 11, 1890.

Mr. Horn married Alma Lama in Tarlton in 1928, his widow surviving in addition to two children, Mrs. Eunice Brown and Boyd Horn of Circleville.

Funeral will be Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Albaugh chapel, the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery. The body will be at the funeral home where friends may call Sunday evening.

BERT H. WARD, FORMER ASHVILLE RESIDENT, DIES

Bert H. Ward, 59, a former resident of Ashville, died Thursday at his home, 69½ Hossack street, Columbus. His wife, Susan Scarberry Ward, died several years ago.

Survivors include the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. W. C. Hoover, Clinton Ward, Mrs. Charles Baker of Ashville, Dill Ward of Williamsport and Fred of Walnut township.

Funeral will be Saturday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hoover, Ashville, the Rev. O. W. Smith officiating. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery by E. F. Schlegel.

Vatican or the historic Catholic churches in the city proper.

The Vatican city is located across the Tiber somewhat apart from Rome proper. However, it is felt that it would be extremely difficult to carry out night bombing of Rome without stray bombs hitting the Vatican. Nor is it thought that military objectives, such as the railway lines, could be effectively bombed from the air, even in the daylight, without destroying some of the historic churches in the city proper.

In the early part of the war, the British threatened to bomb Rome if Athens or Cairo were bombed. Both the Greek and Egyptian capitals eventually were bombed, but the British refrained from carrying out the threatened retaliation against Rome.

Nevertheless, the Italian capital has had air raid scares. Shortly after Italy entered the war, French planes flew over Rome for four successive nights dropping propaganda leaflets. Each night found the populace flocking out of the city in near panic for fear bombs would follow the leaflets.

DUCE IGNORED IN AXIS EXCHANGE OF FELICITATIONS

TOKYO, Dec. 11—(By official Japanese radio)—Emperor Hirohito today exchanged telegrams of congratulation with Adolf Hitler and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy on the first anniversary of the Italo-German-Japanese military pact.

The Tokyo broadcast describing the exchange of telegrams was the first since the war began that Premier Benito Mussolini has been ignored by his axis colleagues as head of the Italian state.

The Tripartite military agreement was signed not by King Victor Emmanuel, who is only a figurehead in the Italian state, but by Mussolini himself and his Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Emperor Hirohito may have sent his telegram to the king because royalty recognized royalty as head of a state. But this nevertheless is the first recorded instance in which Mussolini has been completely frozen out of an interchange of axis felicitations.

distribution of the nation's beef products."

One big reason for meat shortages in cities like Detroit, Boston and Washington, it was said, was that local ceiling prices were low and that packers in the big supply points of Chicago and Kansas City thus had no inclination to ship beef to them.

Instead, large packers, who provide the greater portion of meats to cities, shipped their processed beef to towns offering the highest ceiling prices.

This was especially true, department officials reported, since packers could supply civilians only 70 percent of 1941 civilian meat consumption. With meat supplies off, packers sought to reach the best markets for what meat they could sell.

know we can lick them. They may have been hot shots in Malaya, but we have learned how to take care of them."

The Japanese are in sore straights. They have been driven out of Gona, and are hemmed in around Buna, 14 miles south. They landed at Lae and Salamaua March 9, and took the Gona-Buna coastal sector July 22. Last September 21 they had crossed the Owen Stanley mountain range and were within 32 miles of our base at Port Moresby.

Then the allied counter drive started and swept the enemy back to the coast.

Now they are playing out their string, but they are definitely "bomb-happy."

In the last few days the Japs tried several times to break through our encirclement, but we mowed them down. Not a single one got through.

DIVE TROOPERS MAY BE ADDED TO U. S. FORCES

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—"Dive troopers" who could make delayed parachute leaps from unseen stratospheric planes and land virtually without detection by the enemy were termed practical today by four physicians on the basis of test jumps made late in 1941 by Arthur H. Starnes, former stunt pilot.

Writing in the quarterly bulletin of the Northwestern Medical school, the four physicians said:

"Delayed parachute jumps from stratospheric heights are an entirely practical means of avoiding hazardous aerial situations such as the danger of a parachutist being shot down by the enemy."

TO SHOPPERS

ALL: Nobody now can do his Christmas shopping early. It is already late. There are still things to be bought in stores, but many numbers have disappeared. Some will not return till after the war, some will be replaced with a difference. One thing can still be bought, and in quantity as great as the heart of the shopper may desire. That's War Bonds and War Savings stamps. The giver who buys them now for his child, his cousin, his friend or the elevator man in his office building is giving not merely one gift, but three. First, he is showing his good-will toward the person who receives, and that's the basic principle of Christmas. Second, he is giving a gift which will be good for ten years, increasing in value all the time. When the child now six becomes sixteen, he will be glad to count over the bonds in the family box at the bank, thankful the money was not spent on toys long since broken, but on something which can be used for that priceless treasure, education. The third gift is one given not only to the friend, but to all Americans. It's liberty. It is never too late for that glorious shopping.

TO HOUSEWIVES

WOMEN: Preparations have been completed for Circleville's house-to-house campaign to explain the share the meat program to adult consumers. Plans for the campaign to bring about voluntary limitation of civilian meat consumption to an average of two and one-half pounds a week for each adult and adolescent were discussed at a meeting the other evening which was attended by nearly 100 Circleville women who will conduct the undertaking. They have been issued pamphlets which they will distribute in their neighborhoods. Each has a certain street to serve, and each is expected to do her duty. You should show her courtesy during her visit to your home because she has a job to do for Uncle Sam. Her "War Food Communicator No. 1" is of much importance because it gives you the opportunity to help the nation in its task. Meat you conserve may give some soldier boy or some sailor, even your own son or your neighbor's, some food that he needs in his fight against the axis. Compliance with the two and one-half pounds of meat a week program will not work a hardship on anyone especially if good use is made of the large quantities of alternate foods readily available in adequate quantities. To Mrs. Eva B. Shulze, chief of the women's activities in the Circleville Civilian Defense Council, goes credit for organizing the city's block captains who will carry on this house-to-house work. She has done a splendid job in organizing the city block units.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON.—That the United Nations will defeat the Axis is the increasingly evident consensus of opinion in governmental circles, in such important capitals as Washington and London. Judgments differ somewhat as to how long it will take, but the final outcome is practically certain. Economists are noting, however, that financial markets don't react as naturally as expected, on the supposition that the international military outlook is a foregone conclusion. They don't manifest the cheerful confidence that might seem reasonable to be looked for. They're not depressed, but neither are they jubilant. This isn't to be interpreted, it seems, as an indication that the financiers are skeptical of the accuracy of the military folks' calculations concerning fighting prospects. Instead, the guessing concerns the sort of socio-economic world we're likely to graduate into at the current strife's end. The individual doubtless will continue to own his house and lot, the clothes he wears and any little retail business that may happen to have been left over to him. But how about big business that perhaps he's invested in?

The miniature firm of Jones & Smith presumably will survive, but how about the huge Jones-Smith corporation that the peewee partners own a few shares in and on which they draw a few dollars in quarterly dividends? Taxes will be terrific on into the indefinite future. Wages are being governmentally frozen, so that the corporation won't be able to economize in that particular. Prices are being frozen also, so that the concern won't be able to get back to a pre-war break in that detail. Temporarily the Jones-Smith outfit has a sufficient bank account to wiggle through the crisis—provided it doesn't last too long. But will all these wage floors and price ceilings be ripped out as soon as peace is restored? Or is it a new system that we're inadvertently being absorbed into—one that's last on into post-war infancy? In short, will we ever succeed in re-establishing pre-war capitalism to employee-customer arithmetic? And then, tariffs? I've always been a free-trader, but these readjustments can be pretty disorganizing when decided suddenly. Market speculators, it appears, are suspicious that olden times are gone forever. Just what's ahead, they're leery of. Their impression is that our hitherto modern democracies will be involved, as well as our modern despotism, such as Russia, for instance. One question is—What's it desirable for a man to work at?—not from his own self-

TO 18-YEAR-OLDS

BOYS: You who were born between July 1, 1924, and August 31, 1924, started Friday to register for army service, and before very long you fellows will be in service. The draft board remains open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day for the next week, including Saturday, to assist youths who should be registered. You can help the board if you will not all try to register the first day, but will try to appear in the board offices at times which will be convenient for the board. Members of the office personnel have a lot of work to do and anything you can do to help them will be appreciated. Saturday afternoon would be a good time for you to register, since the employees will have their routine duties put aside during the afternoon so they will be free to help you. Other boys of 18 who have not yet registered will appear at other times prior to the first of the year.

TO WOMEN

FOLK: Women certainly are getting physically tough and resistant to disease. Who ever refers to them any more as the "frail" and "delicate" sex? Look at the way they dress, and how they get away with it. They used to bundle up and shrink from the cold, but now they go around cheerfully with only a few ounces of clothing to protect them from the wintry blasts. And instead of suffering and "catching colds" they seem to thrive. It wouldn't be surprising to find that their average health is now better than men's. The latter still carry around a rather heavy weight of clothing. But maybe this way of looking at it is putting the cart before the horse. Can it be that women are healthier not in spite of their reckless exposure to the elements, and their greater physical exertion, but because of it? And if this is the case, what a pity that the great discovery should have been so long delayed! Men might do well to look into this matter, before they themselves are reduced to comparatively delicate health, and tough and sturdy womanhood takes over everything.

TO COUNTY COMMUNITIES

RURALITES: Interest shown in the recent test alert planned by Civilian Defense and steps your mayors and trustees have taken in preparing for a blackout, date for which is approaching quicker than most persons expect prove that you are doing everything you can to make yourselves ready for any emergency that might develop because of the war. Nearly everyone has just about enough to do in this day and age when things are moving at an accelerated speed. No one likes to take on any more duties than those already assigned to him, but many of Pickaway county's rural leaders are doing a splendid job in Civilian Defense organization work. I hope that they will receive all the cooperation they need to perfect their various units.

Do Books or Garments Transmit Tuberculosis?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS A natural question and it is sent to me quite frequently by relatives and friends of patients with tuberculosis: they want to know whether articles which the

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

tuberculous patient has handled are contaminated so that they can transmit the disease.

In general it may be said that there is very little practical danger of this. Books read by consumptives probably are occasionally contaminated by sputum in the form of droplets expelled during coughing or speaking as the book is held close to the face.

They may also be contaminated by licking the thumb or finger when turning the pages. But those who have studied the question agree that most of the germs deposited on the book pages become dry and dead after a short period of time. In one experiment papers were exposed to coughing patients and afterwards dried for one month. They were found to be free of tuberculosis germs and washings from the papers inoculated into guinea pigs did not affect the guinea pigs in a single instance.

In another experiment patients with advanced pulmonary tuberculosis and a great number of germs in the sputum were asked to handle books as carelessly as possible. They coughed on the marked pages, wet their thumbs with saliva when turning these pages. Scrapings were later derived from these pages, put in a solution and inoculated into guinea pigs and in no instance did any of the guinea pigs become infected with tuberculosis.

In the case of garments the same sort of experiments have been carried out.

In a large sanatorium cultures were made from swabbings of bedside tables, lamps, bed frames and other articles in rooms occupied by tuberculous patients with uniformly negative results. None of the cultures showed a growth of tubercle bacilli. An almost certain way to prevent the contamination of articles in a sickroom occupied by a tuberculous patient is to allow sunlight to enter into the room as much as possible, preferably sunlight that is unfiltered by window glasses.

These experiments should not, however, give rise to a false sense of security and the following precautions are judicious:

1. The best way to ease the mind of the possibility of transmission of tuberculosis by a book is to store or quarantine the book for several weeks until any moisture which has been coughed upon it has completely dried.

2. As far as garments are concerned, the safest way is to expose them to the sun and air before storing them. There is no other method of disinfection that is so effective with the tubercle bacillus as sunlight and drying.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. M. B.: Is it the nature of an ovarian cyst to contract and expand, disappearing for a time, and later returning?

Answer: Such a condition with an ovarian cyst is very rare, but could occur.

Embattled Love

BY LORENA CARLETON

SYNOPSIS

A chance meeting in the San Francisco fog leads to a spur-of-the-moment marriage in Reno by PAIGE SHELTON, whose sweetheart has just been killed fighting for the Allies, and RESTWICK (RUSTY) CARNES III, wealthy descendant of early Hawaiian settlers. Rusty marries her to spite the girl he thinks he loves, EUGENIA NORTH, his selfish fiancée.

YESTERDAY: Paige tells Rusty that she will "fix that person" who cast suspicion on her in the jewel robbery.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE GIRL'S vehemence bothered Restwick Carnes so much that he sat down beside her and demanded, "Whom are you talking about?"

"That remains one of my little secrets."

"It seems to me you have several secrets," Paige gave him a cutting glance. "Well," he defended, "after all, I don't know anything about you. You are mysterious, you know. I simply found you strolling around in the fog—"

Paige groaned. "Ohhh! Are we back on that fog business?" She swung about to rest on her heels and face him directly. "So far as that goes, I found you strolling in the fog, too. Remember? And so far as I knew then you could have been the Titanic Terror, in spite of all your big talk about the Honolulu Carnes clan. I didn't ask you a lot of questions."

"You didn't have to. I told you."

Paige's head bobbed up and down. "I'll say you did. You prattled continuously." Now perched on one foot, she was trying to move the heavy case.

"Prattled?" screamed Rusty. "Simply because I was honest."

"That shrieking is scarcely the accompaniment for such a virtuous remark," Paige chided in a falsely tender tone.

"Is that so?" Restwick Carnes said through gnashed teeth. "Well, neither is that creamy voice of yours an accompaniment for the way you're kicking that suitcase."

He reached for it. "I'll put it under the bed for you."

"I'll do it myself."

"Give me that suitcase!" He snatched it from her with such momentum that she toppled and landed on her elbow.

"That's what you get for being so stubborn. I suppose you're going to tell me you've broken your arm."

His placid tone infuriated the girl. "I haven't broken anything," she shouted.

"Then why are you crying?" He finished shoving the heavy case beneath the bed, then turned to her again.

She dashed tears from her eyes. "I'm not crying!" "What a fool I am," she thought with repugnance. "What would he say if he knew how much I've been thinking about him, how much I've been depending on him?"

Restwick Carnes looked into his wife's smoldering face. What would she say, he thought, if I told her how close I came to kissing her just then, not sympathetically because she had bumped her elbow, but because I suddenly found her irresistible, because I wanted to kiss those pouting lips and force her into some emotion besides rage?

And then he knew he did not want to kiss her, because her expression had changed to one of sly cunning. She had forgotten Rusty. How, she was trying to explain to her own satisfaction, had Eugenia known about the robbery the preceding day, less than an hour from the time the Brazilians had gone chattering from their stateroom? Undoubtedly all that excitable talk had been at the time they discovered their loss. How had Eugenia known enough about it to be influenced, as she had been, by the sight of the gems in Paige's purse?

pression had changed to one of sly cunning. She had forgotten Rusty. How, she was trying to explain to her own satisfaction, had Eugenia known about the robbery the preceding day, less than an hour from the time the Brazilians had gone chattering from their stateroom? Undoubtedly all that excitable talk had been at the time they discovered their loss. How had Eugenia known enough about it to be influenced, as she had been, by the sight of the gems in Paige's purse?

During the next three days Paige stayed in the stateroom, even taking her meals there. For some unaccountable reason, she felt ashamed. She knew it was absurd. The ones to feel ashamed were the captain, the investigators, even more so, Rusty. The three officials had merely been doing their duty whereas Rusty, in a way, had failed her. After all her sentimental drive about his being protective!

And Eugenia! There was the one who really should be ashamed. It's a good thing," Paige meditated murderously, "that I've stayed in this room. If I had encountered that treacherous blond, right after my compulsory interview, anything might have happened. Even now, I'd like to poke one of those brown eyes. Better still, both of them."

Restwick Carnes walked in while his wife was in the midst of her mental ranting. He dropped a new collection of slot machine quarters on the dressing table.

"Look what my liberty heads did for me. You can't beat them. They're thinner or something. Every time the machine was supposed to drop five it dropped six. Good old liberty heads."

Good old liberty heads. He was separating them from the newer coins with great care. "I'll probably break the Watson line completely tonight."

Paige spoke for the first time. Rather she laughed. "Haw! Haw!" like a street urchin.

Rusty looked at her reflection in the dressing table mirror. "Hey, spouse," he said, "there's been enough of this freestyle moping. I'm fed up playing the deserted bridegroom. Even Eugenia is giving me the horse laugh."

He began dragging out dinner clothes, dark trousers and a white dinner jacket, now that they finally had reached tropical waters. "Tonight is the captain's dinner and I think you should go."

The girl began brushing her hair with even more energetic strokes than she had been using. "Yes, I certainly owe the captain a lot of courtesy. Bless his heart!" she greeted. "But I'll go. I'm a little bit tired of this hibernation."

Actually it was her husband's mention of Eugenia North that had spurred her decision to join the festivities of the last night on board the Matzian. Suddenly she wanted to see with her own eyes how the blond girl was behaving.

"Wear something de luxe-like," prompted Rusty.

He received another little honking insulting laugh. "Yes, dear. And do you think, dear, that it would be all right if I wore jewelry?"

"Which is known as rubbing it in." He pulled a flat case from a drawer in his side of the dressing table and fished for ruby studs and cuff links. "Just be beautiful enough to shock that delighted grin off Eugenia's face. That's all I ask."

"I could do that easily," thought Paige. "If only I dared say what I believe. But I must be so very sure."

As it turned out, Paige did not wear jewels that evening. Her gown was too elaborate for further elaboration. The full skirt of mauve organza was trimmed with small bouquets of artificial violets. Similar blossoms encircled the high throatline of the bodice, purple blossoms on a narrow band that became two at the shoulders and criss-crossed over her bare back.

Rusty's comment on the absence of jewelry flabbergasted her. "It's a good thing you aren't wearing any," he stressed. "There are jewel thieves on board, you know."

She hooted. "You're telling me!" After a frowning scrutiny of his face, she said, "Well, don't look so insulted. It was a dumb remark. What's come over you, anyway?"

"It has just dawned that if they have taken someone else's stuff they might take yours, too."

"Amazing deduction!" Her badinage brought the familiar rudeness. "Where are yours?" he insisted.

"Really, Rusty, I'm beginning to wonder if you aren't the jewel thief yourself." Her smile saved the verbal out, however, and for an instant she stood watching the blue kineless melt from his eyes. She patted a muff of purple violets.

"They're still in the gray purse inside this thing. I'll bet you thought it was a pillow." Rather critically she eyed herself in the full-length mirror of the bathroom door. "Rusty, I feel like a fool in this garb, even though it did cost a young fortune; but I'm sure it is just the Arabian Nights affair to impress Eugenia."

"You look beautiful," the man said lightly. "Beautiful," he repeated; but this time his voice astounded him by being uncontrollably husky. That was her trouble, he told himself savagely. She was too beautiful! Beautiful enough to make a fool of a man. He jerked at her arm and said shortly, "Come on!"

During the bountiful captain's dinner he was sulky and uncommunicative. The meal was long and elaborate: mountains of olives, crisp celery hearts, pineapple juice, chicken consommé, creamed sea food, filet mignon, salad, ice cream, replica of the Matzian, complete with baby American flag; cakes and coffee. Rusty had two white creme de menthe frappes with brandy collars. The dinner demolished an hour and a half.

Yet he made only one statement, and that was when he had finished his second after-dinner drink. "I feel as stuffed as a luau pig."

"How romantic," murmured Paige. "Sounds just like a bridegroom."

The man ignored her insolent ridicule. "Let's get up to A-deck and nab a good table. Don't forget to put your cheek against mine when we dance."

"Eugenia will be watching." Paige said silently. The knowledge that she was furious made her more furious. "What do I care," she demanded of herself. "He's nothing to me. Why do I want to hit him? He's nothing to me," she said again. "Nothing!"

Rotarians, Guests Hear Dr. Harlan Wilson Speak

Work In England Discussed At Annual Fete

Outstanding for fine entertainment was the Rotary-Ann party Thursday at the Pickaway Arms, 75 members and guests of the Rotary club gathering for the annual affair. Dr. Harlan Wilson of Columbus as guest speaker held the close attention of the group as he told of personal experiences when in England during six months of this year.

Dr. Wilson spoke of the fine morale of the English people which he said can never be broken. He told of their endurance of terrible war experiences. Especially he discussed the establishment of the hospital at Oxford and showed about 300 feet of film of views of the institution, the operating and special treatment rooms, and of patients undergoing surgical treatment. Dr. Wilson's talk was well-received, bringing to the audience a more keen understanding of the trials of civilians in war times.

An excellent turkey dinner was served at long tables centered with vases of dark red roses, the roses being presented as favors to the ladies at the close of the meeting. These roses, and the lovely bouquet centering the speaker's table, were gifts from Rotarian E. L. Brehmer, who also provided the screen and projector for the pictures shown by Dr. Wilson.

Musical was furnished by the Kwanetses, directed by Miss Marjorie Vorhes, the many selections being splendidly presented and enthusiastically received. Group singing was another pleasing feature of the entertainment.

Seated at the speaker's table in addition to Dr. Wilson and Miss Mary Brown of Columbus, his secretary, were Mr. and Mrs. Eldred A. Cayce, Judge and Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. May, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Gilmore, Karl Mason, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Phillips and Ray Rowland.

Those responsible for the fine dinner meeting were Mr. Cayce, Judge Terwilliger and Mr. Mason.

State Grange
Mrs. Turney Glick, Pickaway county juvenile grange matron, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Beers, Scioto grange and Mrs. Homer Wright, Salter Creek Valley grange, attended the session of the Ohio State grange in Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Beers as delegates and Mrs. Wright, as an alternate for the county.

Honors awarded Pickaway county granges included recognition of Washington juvenile grange as one of the championship granges of the state.

Mrs. S. L. Warner, Washington grange, won third place in the State Bread baking contest. There were 57 entries.

Pickaway County also received the state banner for home economic work in the community.

Honors were announced at the banquet Wednesday evening and grangers receiving them were introduced at the affair.

Ladies' Society
Christ Lutheran Ladies' society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Lyle Davis, Jackson township, the Rev. George L. Troutman conducting the business and devotional hour. Mrs. George List read the missionary topic.

Election of officers found the Rev. Mr. Troutman again chosen for president; Mrs. Ellis List, vice president; Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel, secretary; Mrs. Noah List, treasurer; Mrs. G. L. Troutman, pianist; Mrs. John List, reporting secretary.

Eighteen members and guests were present. A covered dish lunch was served and members enjoyed an exchange of Christmas gifts during the social hour.

Heber Chapter O.E.S.
Annual installation ceremonies for officers of Heber chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, Williamsport, were held Thursday in Masonic temple of the village with Mrs. Clarence McAbee of Wayne township as installing officer. Mrs. Ida Ware was installed as worthy matron and Joseph Varney, worthy patron.

Past Matrons' Circle
Past Matrons' and Patrons' circle of the Order of the Eastern Star met Thursday in the Red room, Masonic temple, with a short business session in charge of Mrs. G. H. Spangler, new president.

The program in charge of Mrs. Mae Tolbert was on the theme, "Christmas, old in the history of the World."

Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer presented an interesting reading, "The Legend of the Christmas Tree." Mrs. Price, Mrs. Irene Newton, and Mrs. Tolbert were heard in readings and the group sang carols during the program hour. Mrs. George Bentley played two piano selections, "Christmas Eve" and "Christmas Chimes" by Greenwald.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Spangler, assisted by Mrs. Tolbert, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck and Mrs. Bentley.

The centerpiece on the long table was a Yule log with sprigs of evergreen and seven tall red candles. Christmas candles burned at each end of the table.

An exchange of gifts completed the plans for the delightful affair.

Joint Meeting
Farm Bureau councils 3 and 4 held a joint meeting Thursday in Jackson school auditorium with 45 members and guests present. After a fine cooperative supper, the councils met separately for short business sessions and then met jointly, to discuss farm problems.

The main topic of discussion centered in a letter from Perry Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, written in answer to a letter from Council No. 3 in which many questions were asked concerning the attitude of the Ohio State Farm Bureau toward present-day farm problems. Very responsive open discussion followed, the group going on record by saying that "parity should be figured at the present date with industry, labor and agriculture."

The group voted to have one joint meeting each year of the advisory councils of Jackson township.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Velma Thomas, Dorothy Hodgson, Wanda Hinton, Emogene Newlon and Caroline Fischer.

Salem Ladies' Aid
Salem Ladies' Aid society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Merle McAfee, Pickaway township, with 20 members and guests present. Mrs. Frank McAfee was assisting hostess.

Mrs. Edgar Harral, president, led the business hour. The Rev. L. T. Wilkin of Kingston read the Christmas lesson from Luke 2 and offered prayer.

Mrs. Jesse Hildenbrand, chairman of the ways and means committee, asked each member to take a chicken to the January meeting.

The program included a duet, "Silent Night," by Mrs. Fairy Alkire and Mrs. Elmer Dodd and three readings, "The Lighted Candle," "What Christmas Means to the World" and "A Christmas Blessing," by Mrs. L. T. Wilkin. The group sang "The Star Spangled Banner" as the closing number.

The social hour was marked by an exchange of gifts and a seasonal lunch.

Tuxis Club
Fifteen members attended the meeting of Tuxis club Thursday in the social room of the Presbyterian church. During the business hour, plans were discussed for entertaining the first and second football teams, managers and coaches at a party to be held Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

The hospitality committee named for the affair includes Mary Ellen Fissell, Maxine Friedman, William Rutherford, Paul Siegwald, Barbara Helwegson, George Helwegson, Charles Will and Mona Lee Hanley.

"Christmas and Literature" was the topic discussed during the study period. Games were enjoyed and lunch was served. The lunch was served by Dudley Coffland, Martha Hulse and Ann Snider.

Art Sewing Club
Miss Laura Mantle will entertain the Art Sewing club at a Christmas party Wednesday at 8 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home.

Logan Elm Grange
An excellent Christmas program will be presented Tuesday at the meeting of Logan Elm grange in Pickaway school auditorium. A cooperative dinner will be served at 7 p. m. The grange will furnish hot rolls for the dinner and members are requested to take table service.

Holiday Vacation
Miss Betty Clifton, a senior at Greenbrier college, Lewisburg, Va., will attend the Christmas Dance given by the cadets of Greenbrier Military school in Lewisburg, December 12. She will arrive in Cincinnati December 17 to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clifton.

Early December Wedding
At a quiet wedding December 5 in the Wooster avenue Methodist church of Akron, Miss Mildred Louise Grose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Grose of 814 North Court street became the bride of Mr. Donald R. Beatty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy N. Beatty, 633 North Court street. The double ring ceremony was performed at 5 p. m. by the Rev. Thomas J. Maxwell, pastor of the church.

The bride chose a street dress of blue transparent velvet with matching hat for her wedding and wore a rose and orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Robinson of Akron were the only attendants.

They will live in Akron where both are employed at the Goodyear Plant.

Guest At Wedding
Mrs. B. T. Hedges of North Pickaway street went to Columbus Friday to spend the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hedges. Mrs. B. T. Hedges and Mrs. Ed Hedges will leave Saturday for Decatur, Ind., to attend the wedding of Miss Martha Elizabeth Calland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ward Calland, who will be married Sunday at 2 p. m. to Lieutenant Charles Frost Camp of the United States Marine Corps. The wedding at the First Methodist church of Decatur will be followed by a reception at the Calland home.

Walnut Needle Club
Walnut Needle club will meet Wednesday at 1 p. m. at Mrs. Marion's party home for the annual Christmas party.

D. U. V. Dinner
The annual Daughters' dinner of the Daughters of Union Veterans was enjoyed Thursday in Memorial hall. Fourteen members participated in the cooperative affair and pleasant social hour.

Christ Lutheran Society
Luther league of Christ Lutheran church will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Beougher, Muhlenberg township. There will be an exchange of toys.

Circle 5
Circle 5 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church will have a luncheon meeting Thursday December 17, at 12:30 p. m. at the church. Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer is chairman of the circle.

Dance Chairman
Miss Mary Jane Kreisel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kreisel of Pickaway township, will be social chairman for the formal Winter dance to be held Saturday evening by members of Alpha Xi Delta sorority at the chapter house, Columbus. Walter Knick's orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

Washington Grange
Washington grange will have its annual Christmas party and a covered dish dinner Friday, December 18, at the school building. Dinner will be served at 7 p. m. and the party will follow.

Miss Jeanne Darling of West Lafayette, Ind., is visiting at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Goeller, Beverly road, and will remain over the week end.

Mrs. Florence Steele of South Scioto street returned home Thursday after visiting her daughter, Mrs. P. S. Bernard, of Middletown, and another daughter, Mrs. A. H. Smith, of Columbus.

Mrs. Lee Alexander of Ashville was a Thursday shopper in Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howard of Williamsport were Thursday business visitors in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Fannie Rector of Walnut township was a Cincinnati shopper Thursday.

Mrs. Fannie Beery of near Ashville was a Thursday visitor in Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hedges of Walnut township were Thursday business visitors in Cincinnati.

Mrs. H. P. Folsom of East Main street returned home Thursday after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Newton of Shaker Heights.

Mrs. William Fischer Sr. and Mrs. William Fischer Jr. of Ashville were Thursday shopping visitors in Cincinnati.

To increase food resources during wartime, the Fish and Wildlife Service, U. S. department of the interior, has initiated an investigation on the biology, cultivation and utilization of the common mussel. Mussels, like other shellfish, have a high nutritive value.

The game, climax of the professional football season, will be played in Griffith stadium, Washington, D. C., home of the Redskins. The play-off re-matches the 1940 winners. The Bears won that game by a wide margin but grid expect a stiffer battle this time.

MERRY MACS JOIN SHOW
Most popular singing group in America, the Merry Macs, will be heard in the two-hour Christmas Day variety show. The Macs are the newest addition to a talent roster for the broadcast over the Columbus network December 25 from 4 to 6 p. m. which already includes Don Ameche as master of ceremonies, Bob Hope, Bette Davis, Abbott and Costello and Lou Silver as musical director.

The Merry Macs started their collective careers in radio, being featured on prominent network shows. Then they moved on to Hollywood and pictures. They've spent all their spare time recently entertaining service men around the country.

LORETTA YOUNG
Loretta Young will play the part of Gaby, glamorous French girl beloved of Pepe Le Moko (Charles Boyer), in Cecil B. DeMille's Radio Theatre adaptation of the film "Algiers" Monday December 14 at 9 p. m. over CBS.

The scene of "Algiers," fast-paced melodrama, is the mysterious Casbah, native quarter of the ancient north African city.

Supporting roles will be played by J. Carroll Naish as Inspector Slimane and Gene Lockhart as Regis.

PETER LORRE
A macabre study based on the eternal struggle of life and death—of strange proceedings in a mad scientist's laboratory—these are the elements in the latest spine-chilling drama that will feature Peter Lorre on the Inner Sanctum Mystery for Sunday, December 13. The title of the script is "The Man Who Returned From the Dead."

KYSER'S WORK LIKED
Kay Kyser's recording of "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" was the most popular selection of the month with juke box nickle-droppers, according to a survey made in Chicago. The report showed that Kyser's band played three of the ten most popular recordings of the month. Others were his waxing of "Strip Polka," not heard on the air, and "Every Night About This Time."

PRO FOOTBALL
The 1942 professional football championship game, matching the powerful Chicago Bears, western division winners, and the Washington Redskins, eastern title holders, will be broadcast exclusively on MBS-WKRC, Sunday, December 13, beginning at 1:45 p. m. with kickoff at 2 p. m.

Harry Wismer, well-known network football announcer will do the play-by-play account. Two "color" men, Russ Hodges and Jack Dreese, will assist Wismer. All three will donate their entire salary to one of the service's relief societies.

The game, climax of the professional football season, will be played in Griffith stadium, Washington, D. C., home of the Redskins. The play-off re-matches the 1940 winners. The Bears won that game by a wide margin but grid expect a stiffer battle this time.

Nova to Defeat Tami Mauriello, or Retire

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The weird young man known as Lou Nova, who has tried to keep the sports world from dozing by lengthy lectures on the value of cosmic punches, dynamic stance and a lot of other nonsense in the past, will attempt to prove to the same citizens at Madison Square Garden tonight he is not a bum.

That is the simple story of the 10-round bout Promoter Michael Strauss Jacobs has thoughtfully arranged for his clients between Cosmic Lou and young Tami Mauriello of the Bronx. Mauriello, despite the fact that a year ago he was fighting for the middleweight title and Nova was only a 3-1 underdog against Champion Joe Louis, will go into the ring highly favored tonight.

Tami's record of 11 wins, a draw with Bob Pastor and one disputed reversal in a dozen fights this year and Nova's inactivity explain the price of 12-5 being levied on Mauriello.

Nova's last big fight was with Lee Savold in Washington, D. C. last Summer. The cosmic gentleman would not listen to the advice of his manager, Mr. Ray Carlen, and soak his face with brine to toughen it.

Would Be Thespian
 Lou had been bitten by the acting bug during the Florida Winter season and his skin had become soft. Mr. Nova has a mind of his own, as Carlen found out a long time ago, and wouldn't listen. He held Savold too cheaply, was hacked up like a piece of pork and lost on a technical kayo that all but ended his career.

Now, crossing his heart and hoping the fans will give him just one more chance, Mr. Nova returns for his last big college try. He thinks he can lick Mauriello, may even knock him out. Very few gentlemen have had Mr. Mauriello on the deck and if Nova can belt him out he will undo a lot of plans on the part of Promoter Strauss Jacobs, who is plotting a return bout between Mauriello and Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland. Bivins is the gentleman who whipped the youngster a few months ago.

It should be a good fight for Nova has told Manager Carlen he will quit the ring if beaten decisively. Both lads do their best when they are hurt and since they enjoy slugfests there shouldn't be many dull moments.

Nova expects to have about 20 pounds on the young Italian. He usually weighs about 205 and Mauriello about 185.

REISER, BROOKLYN STAR, TO ENTER ARMY SOON

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—The Brooklyn Dodgers may have to play next season without the services of their star outfielder, Peter Reiser, it became known today.

Reiser, for the last two seasons the leading outfielder in the National league, has been reclassified 1-A in the draft and is expected to enter the army sometime next month. Married during Spring training last year, he previously had been classified in 3-A by his Brooklyn draft board.

The outfielder, a resident of St. Louis, came East last week for a physical examination by his draft board physician. His subsequent reclassification was announced at the weekly press conference of Branch Rickey, new Dodger general manager, yesterday.

Final Mass Registration for War Under Way in County

YOUTHS BEING LISTED AT CITY DRAFT OFFICE

Teen Aged From Now On
Required To Be Listed
On Birthdays

CLASSIFICATION STARTED

Older Boys Expected To Be Called To Colors
Next Month

With the war's final mass registration for service in Uncle Sam's army under way Friday, Pickaway county Selective Service office has started sending notices of classification to youths of 18 and 19 years of age who were registered last June.

Many of the fifth registration group have already received notices of classification and have been told that older boys of this group can expect to be assigned for induction in January. No lottery was conducted for the fifth registration, so ages are used to determine the order in which youngsters will go into service.

Youths Aided

Draft officials started their registration machinery Friday to sign boys born between July 1, 1924, and August 31, 1924, these youths having become 18 since the June registration. Draft board offices will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day except Sunday to assist the youths fill out their papers. No extra help is being obtained since the board estimated that not more than 100 boys of the city and county have become 18 since the June registration. Registration for this age group will be concluded next Friday.

Two additional periods have been designated for other boys of 18. Youths born between September 1, 1924, and not after October 31, 1924, will register from December 18 to 24, and youths born between November 1, 1924, and December 31, 1924, will sign up between December 26 and December 31.

Register On Birthday

During the continuance of the war boys will register with their draft board on the day they reach 18.

First contingent of men assigned to fill the county's December quota will be sent to Columbus early next week to be examined by the army medical team. This group will be the first sent short from Pickaway county, 19 men who have reached 38 being stricken from the list under Washington orders. They have been placed in 4-H. The second contingent to be sent a week later will be short, also, since sufficient men were not available to fill the call without dipping into the married man class. Had the 38 year ruling been put into effect in January instead of December the board would have had sufficient men to fill the quota.

Group Exhausted

The December contingents will clean up all available single men listed by the board and all men of late marriages, that is men married after registration.

Men who are married and have only wives for dependents owe a vote of thanks to the Selective Service board for not assigning them to service before the holidays. The board maintained a stand that no men married before registration or before induction was imminent should be taken ahead of others of the same group. Had the board processed files of married men of this group some could have been taken to fill quotas in December, while others would not have been taken until the 18 and 19 year old boys had gone into service.

Married Men To Go

As matters stand at present the men of the married class will be sent at the same time, instead of a few being inducted ahead of the 18-19 year olds and the remainder waiting until this group had been exhausted.

Draft board expressed belief Friday that the married group may be called up earlier than expected any way, since some of the boys of the fifth registration who would have gone into service in January or February are still in school and are entitled to deferments until this year's study is ended, if they ask deferments in writing. Many have done so and have been placed in class 2-B, meaning a temporary deferment. Many other 18 and 19 year old boys have been placed in class 2-C, meaning that they are essential to agriculture. These boys will be

Be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.—Hebrews 6:12.

Julius Gordon, East Mound street, will speak at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening. He will discuss the scrap program, procedure in shipping scrap to processing centers, and other phases of the big government undertaking. The club meets in Hanley's tearoom at 6:30 p. m. All members are expected to report on their ticket sales for the football banquet scheduled December 21 in St. Philip's parish house.

Ernest F. May is making a good recovery at his home, East Mound street, after being struck on the head earlier in the week at the army repair garage, Columbus. He received treatment for two days in a Columbus hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clifton of 131 Park place are parents of twin daughters born Friday in Berger hospital.

Roy Knece of Laurelville Route 2 was removed home Friday from Berger hospital. He is recovering from injuries suffered at the Eshelman mill a week ago.

WEARING ARMY UNIFORM LEADS TO INDICTMENT

Ben K. Keeton of Chillicothe, arrested in Circleville three weeks ago for unlawfully wearing a military uniform after he had been dishonorably discharged from the army, was indicted Friday by federal grand jury.

Keeton was nabbed by Circleville police and military police from the Lockbourne air base. He told authorities that he merely wanted to put on a show "for the girls." He was wearing the stripes of a sergeant.

Keeton faces confinement in a federal institution if found guilty.

WORD AWAITED FREEING FROZEN FARM MACHINES

John G. Boggs, AAA and county War Board chairman, is awaiting word from the Ohio Agricultural War Board concerning distribution of heavy farm machinery now frozen in hands of distributors and manufacturers. During the next week the War Board may inform all county units concerning their quotas for sale of heavy machines imperative to production of imperative foods.

Only 75 percent of the total amount of machinery allotted for sale in Ohio will be sold, Elmer F. Kruse, state War Board chief, said, since 25 percent will be held in reserve to be used in cases where county quotas are not sufficient.

Control over sale of heavy farm equipment became necessary when the government in 1942 allotted materials to construct only 23 percent of the machines that were built in 1940.

deferred so long as they remain on the farm, engaged in farm labor, and as long as they are essential to production of food.

Many Volunteer

Many other 18 and 19 year olds have volunteered for service, this, too, cutting down the list of available registrants.

Draft board has received instructions from state headquarters to start reclassifying married men who have only wives as dependents, and indications are that the first men from this class may be taken into service as early as March. It is believed that enough fifth registration youths will be available to fill January and February calls, barring any unusual demands by state Selective Service officials.

Clear off a space five and five-eighths inches wide and two inches deep on the windshield of your automobile or truck for another sticker, Hal G. Sours, director of the Ohio Department of Highways, advised today.

Red stickers for passenger cars and yellow stickers for trucks are to be used next year in Ohio in lieu of new license plates. They must be displayed by April 1 in the lower right hand corner of the windshield. There will also be red stickers for motorcycles and yellow ones for trailers.

Present license plates on all automotive vehicles and trailers

must be kept on the vehicles throughout next year.

Only one sticker will be used on each car or truck. The sticker may be purchased after March 1 at any deputy registrar's office.

No reservations, special number or initial combinations will be available next year. Present plates of that character are to be used.

ASHVILLE

A cooperative dinner was the first number on the program at the annual organization meeting of Lutheran Ladies Aid society at the church Wednesday. In the selection of officials for the coming year, by virtue of their positions in the church, Rev. Fudge and wife were named president and vice president, respectively of the Aid body. Mrs. Isabel Fischer was named secretary; Mrs. Icie Kuhlwein, treasurer; Mrs. Flora Bastian, pianist.

By invitation of Dr. Chester Rockey, an experienced dentist of several years practice and now located in Eastern Ohio, was here yesterday giving our village the once over with a view of locating here if arrangements can be made for such a move. He has a wife and ten-year-old son. They are expecting to visit here a couple of days next week. Finding a suitable office location together with a dwelling is the problem yet to be solved and which may prevent them from locating here.

Corporal Armon R. Tigner, a part of the armed training forces in camp, arrived here the 9th from Camp Shelby, Miss., for a short visit with his parents, Charles and Mrs. Tigner located near town. He has been in the service for 20 months, he told us. Said their work is not so bad there with eats plenty and good. His appearance testifies to this statement.

On several inquiries find the youngsters in day and Sunday schools busy preparing for the one great day for them—Christmas. What Santa Claus will bring for them is the one big thought in their minds now. The really sad part of it all, is that the three-five year olds ever learn how Pop and Mom played tricks on 'em. But even at that, everybody knows for sure there is a Santa Claus.

The local Harrison township trustees, Tom Purcell, Harry Roese and the new member Ben Vause, recently appointed by Squire Malone to fill the vacancy caused by Russell Reid removing from the township, held regular meetings here the first and third Monday evenings of each month. James R. Hoover is township clerk.

It is all fixed and set down on his big book that the Dear Old Man will be here with a treat for all the good kiddies of the community. Mayor Hines got a letter from the whiskered Old Boy just yesterday and he'll be here without fail. Exact time will be named at a later date.

If the Weather Man is gentle and kind with his goods today, there are several things which will get attention. The grain elevator boys haven't been called on for several days. Bad soiled weather though, but even at that, that row of nice, frame cribs surely are part filled. Heard yes-
